Getting to Luke

Directions

Located 20 miles northwest of downtown Phoenix and nine miles west of downtown Glendale, Luke is accessible by any mode of transportation.

By automobile, take Litchfield Road, exit 128, north from Interstate 10 (west of Phoenix), or take Glendale Avenue west from Interstate 17 (north of Phoenix). From Loop 101, head west on Glendale Avenue. Luke is at the intersection of Glendale Avenue and Litchfield Road—Turn left to get to the South Gate and Visitors' Center.

By air, you will arrive at Sky Harbor International Airport, south of Phoenix. Taxi and limousine charges to Luke can run as high as $50, but a "super shuttle" service is available at more reasonable fare. Cost for the first person is about $25, each additional person is only $5.

Location

Centrally located in the Valley of the Sun, Luke is within easy driving distance of numerous recreational and sight-seeing points, including the Grand Canyon and Flagstaff ski slopes to the north, the beaches of California to the west, and Mexico and the Sea of Cortez to the south.

The sixth largest state with 113,417 square miles, Arizona at its widest point is 395 miles long (north to south) and 340 miles wide (east to west).

Accommodations

Lodging is open around the clock. Families may stay in one of 40 Temporary Lodging Facility units for up to 30 days based on availability. Six units allow pets in TLF. Reservations may be made 60 days in advance by calling (623) 856-3941 or DSN 896-3941.

Single airmen arriving PCS after duty hours or on weekends are lodged in VAQ until the first duty day. They are then assigned their squadron dormitory. Military personnel who expect to live in the local community must check with the Housing Office, Building 1150, for briefing and counseling before seeking off-base housing. Rental and sales information is available.

Once You've Arrived

In-Processing

During duty hours, which are 7:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., new arrivals should report to their unit of assignment where they will in-process and be scheduled for base in-processing.

Base in-processing is conducted in at 9 a.m. Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays in Room 2102 of Building 1150. In-processing members must bring copies of their orders, as well as their personnel and finance records. Members are required to be in uniform.

TDY and PCS students should report to the lodging office in Building 660. Civilian employees should report to the Civilian Personnel Office between 8 a.m. and 4 p.m. weekdays in Room 1178 or Building 1150.

At in-processing, members will complete all paperwork related to the move and go through an orientation to familiarize new arrivals with Luke's mission and its organizations. During the first two weeks, military members will be scheduled to attend mandatory courses in drug abuse, education and driver's training. If required, some members will also attend maintenance training. During this time, members must update their Record of Emergency Data.

P.O. Box and General Delivery Service

Located in Building 545 on Mustang Street, this service is for inbound PSC, TDY and dormitory residents only. Hours of operation are from 7:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Mail can be addressed or forwarded to:

Your Rank and Name
General Delivery
Luke AFB, AZ 85309-9999

People who intend to reside off base may continue to receive general delivery service for a limited period of time.

For single military personnel who will reside in on-base single quarters, the member's sponsor can get a P.O. Box number 90 days in advance by presenting a copy of the member's PCS orders to the Postal Service Center.

Regardless of a person's intended residence location, they should personally contact the Postal Service Center upon arrival. Be prepared to present a copy of their orders and their military ID card.

Housing

Base Housing

GMH Military Housing, LLC was selected by the Department of Defense as the partner to privatize family housing at Luke Air Force Base, located in Glendale, Arizona. With 690 homes in Saguaro Manor, north of Glendale Avenue and Ocotillo Manor, south of Glenside Avenue, Luke Air Force Base has it all. Quiet, bright and inviting, each home offers comfortable, luxurious living for any lifestyle with on-site management, numerous amenities, and a great location. It's everything you could want and more!

GMH family housing consists of several types of homes that are available based on rank and family size. Basic bedroom requirements are determined by the number of dependents residing with the service member including qualified dependents up to age 23 who are students. The waiting time for privatized housing varies according to the number of bedrooms authorized, the member's rank, and the time of year of arrival.

With proper documentation, a member arriving from a remote tour is put on the list effective the date he or she departed from CONUS after the top 10 percent of the list is frozen (freeze-zone). The application date on a walk-in-basis is the date a member's application is completed in the Housing Office.

Airmen and junior non-commissioned officer homes consist of two, three, and four bedroom townhomes. There are 43 three-bedroom townhomes for senior NCOs (E-7 through E-9). Officers with families are offered single-home company grade and field-grade houses. There are 35 three-bedroom homes available for company grade, eight three-bedroom and three four-bedroom homes are available for field grade, and four four-bedroom homes are available for senior officers.

All of our homes come with fully equipped kitchens, washer/dryer hookups, and central air conditioning.

Caring and professional, the GMH management and maintenance team at Luke AFB is committed to providing each military member and their family with a quality home and superior customer service. Twenty-four hours a day, seven days a week, the GMH team is ready to make your living experience at Luke AFB a pleasure. To contact the housing office call (623) 388-3515.

Dormitories

For Airmen, there are several different dormitory styles at Luke. The base recently completed renovations of several dormitories to upgrade them to the new Air Force "one plus one” dormitory standard. The new standard is defined as two individual rooms sharing a common bathroom and kitchenette. The innovative design features bathtub/shower combinations, rooms larger than standard and a mini-laundry room where four residents share one washer and dryer. Two newly constructed permanent party enlisted dormitories have been built to the “one plus one” entry styles. Most dormitory rooms share a bathroom with the adjoining room. There are no shared permanent party enlisted dormitory rooms at all, therefore, no roommates. All dormitories have common area recreation rooms, pool and foosball tables, lounges and television rooms. Home theater surround sound systems are in each dormitory to further improve the dormitory environment. All dormitory and room assignments are made based on group integrity and are done by the Consolidated Dormitory Management Office, located adjacent to Dormitory 635, across from the base post office.

Airmen desiring to reside off base may be approved for BAH only if the base-wide dormitory occupancy exceeds 90 percent. Applications can be made at the CDMO.

For further information, contact the CDMO at (623) 856-7841 or DSN 896-7841.

Pet Policy

Base housing residents are limited to two pets. Residents must confine outdoor pets to a fenced-in area and may consider buying or renting commercial fencing which meets base specifications (four-foot-high, chain link). The cost varies according to the area desired. Information is available in Housing Management, (623) 856-3007.

Off-base Housing

Since the variable housing allowance changes periodically, members need to consult accounting and finance for current rates at Luke.

The Housing Relocation section has implemented several programs for personnel seeking off-base housing rentals and sales. One such program is the rental partnership program. Call or visit the Housing Office at (623) 856-3008 in Building 1150 for more information.

The Housing Office offers assistance to those seeking accommodations in the local area. A listing of sale and rental units can be found in this office to help you with your search. The list includes many apartment complexes (63,801 units) and mobile home parks (4,837 units).

For 2006, the average rental costs (without utilities and furnishings) were:

- 1 BR unfurnished apartments: $745 and up
- 2 BR unfurnished apartments: $845 and up
- 3 BR/4BR apartments: $1045 and up
- 3 BR/4BR houses: $800 and up

Utility bills vary widely depending on the size of the apartment or home and time of year. Utility costs are highest during the hot summer months due to air conditioning energy demands. Average monthly utility estimates range from $60 for a one-bedroom apartment to $225 per month for a three- or four-bedroom home. High-demand devices such as pumps for swimming pools can significantly increase utility costs.

Household Goods Delivery

Household goods are delivered only after you arrive and call the Traffic Management Office. You may call TMO during normal duty hours at (623) 856-6425. Family Services, located in Building 1113, can lend housekeeping items until your household goods arrive. They can be reached at (623) 856-6415.

Claims

Newcomers who suffer loss or damage to household goods during a move may submit a claim at the legal office. For a claims appointment call (623) 856-7371.

Generally you can avoid problems with a move by being home to accept delivery, requiring the carrier to unpack all goods and clean up all debris, examining all goods for damage and noting exceptions, and signing the inventory only after all items have been checked and exceptions noted.

If loss or damage occurs, you must notify the claims office within 70 days of delivery or the government cannot collect from the carrier and your claim may be reduced accordingly.

For more information please call (623) 856-7371.

Family Assistance

Airman and Family Readiness Flight

The Airman and Family Readiness Flight offers a variety of programs and services for families and single members in Building 1113, across from Fowler Park.

Relocation assistance is available for both arriving and departing personnel at the FSC and through the Internet. Newcomers receive information about the local area including community maps and brochures, school data, crime rates, recreational activities and "Heartlink," an interactive and fun spouse orientation. Departing members may access the Standard Installation Topic Exchange Service, which provides information about all major DoD installations and the surrounding communities, view base videos, and attend workshops on moving. Childcare for PCS is program to provide newcomers with 20 hours of free childcare during their first 30 days at Luke.

The Transition Assistance Program (TAP) assists retiring or separating personnel in developing a plan for civilian employment using links with community and national employment sources. A fully manned computerized resource center includes automated resume and civil service applications, national and international job postings, and on-site registration with the state employment services. The TAP workshop is a comprehensive 3-day program to prepare retiring and separating service members for civilian employment.

Spouse employment services help family members determine career goals, prepare for job search, write resumes, and identify employment leads. The resource room offers a full variety of automated employment services and current job opportunities.

The Volunteer Resource Program offers information on volunteer employment opportunities, training, and skills development base-wide, as well as an attractive incentive program for all base volunteers.

Financial Assistance includes services of a financial counselor who can assist in budget preparation, debt management, and resolution of credit problems. The Air Force Aid Society provides direct financial assistance for emergencies and for essential living expenses to eligible personnel and families. Referrals are also available to local community sources that help supplement the food budgets for families with young children.

The Family Readiness Program focuses on offering support to the families of members on a remote tour, deployment, or extended temporary duty. Monthly activities and many support programs ensure the military family is not forgotten when the service member gets called away for duty. Post-deployment “Welcome Homes” provide service members and spouses with valuable information to help families reunite.

Family Education offers workshops and referrals relating to family communication, parenting, and personal interest topics such as self-esteem and assertiveness.

The Airman and Family Readiness Flight offers general information and referral for both on and off base community services. All new arrivals are encouraged to visit and find out about services that are available to help them make Luke their home. Come by and find out why “We’re never the wrong place to go.” For more information, call (623) 856-6362.

Family Services

Located next to the hospital in Building 1140, Family Services offers a variety of programs and services for Luke personnel and families.

A well-stocked Loan Closet has kitchenware, baby furnishings, futons, and other household items, available for loan to all relocating families.

New parents who are active duty E-4 and below can receive complimentary baby items through the Layette Program, which is funded by the Officers’ Spouse’s Club, and infant and toddler car seats are also available for loan.

Family Services, a Combined Federal Campaign agency, is a volunteer organization open 9 a.m. to 2 p.m., and lives up to its motto “We take care of our own.” For information on their services, call (623) 856-6415.

Public Schools

While it is best to contact the administration office of the school district in which you are interested in buying or renting, the following information is available on local schools:

Children of base housing residents who live north of Glendale Avenue attend the Dysart School District, which includes Luke Elementary School (kindergarten through sixth grade), Dysart Junior High School (seventh and eighth grades) and Dysart High School (ninth through twelfth grades).

Children residing in base housing south of Glendale Avenue attend the Litchfield School District, which includes Scott L. Libby Elementary School (kindergarten through fifth grade), and Western Sky Middle School (sixth, seventh, and eighth grades).

High school students attend the Agua Fria Union High School District.

If parents want their children to attend a school not in their housing attendance area, they may apply for out-of-district permission at the local campus.

Incoming families who need to enroll their children in school while staying in temporary living quarters on base need to apply to the appropriate school within the Litchfield Elementary School District if they will be living in base housing south of Glendale Avenue or the appropriate school within the Dysart School District if they will be living north of Glendale Avenue.

Children entering school must present a birth or baptismal certificate and immunization records. A school will not release most official school records until the receiving school requests them. Children who are five years of age by Sept. 1 are eligible for kindergarten.

Child Development Center

Whether a child is 6 weeks old or 5 years of age, the Child Development Center provides a quality care program tailored specifically to a child’s age group.

Located in Building 1119 on Commissary Road, the CDC accepts children with reservations and on a space-available, drop-in basis. A child may stay for a few hours or an entire day, on a limited basis. The center also has an active sublet program for parents seeking temporary care.

Accredited by the National Association for the Education of Young Children, the CDC has numerous activities, to both entertain and assist a child’s learning in a safe, supervised environment. Children may play individually or in groups supervised by caregivers.

The CDC's activity centers include reading, manipulative play, music, painting, water play, and sand tables. Weather permitting, children may play outside on playground equipment. The Center also provides breakfast, lunch and afternoon snack.

The Child Development Center is open Monday through Friday, and is closed on holidays and weekends. For more information, call the CDC office at (623) 856-6339.

Family Child Care

Family Child Care gives children a chance to be in a home-like environment and receive needed developmental experiences in a nurturing and natural learning environment.

The FCC office is located at 1609 Mohave and is open from 9:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. Monday through Friday. Their phone number is (623) 856-7472.

A Special Needs Child is a child who has a physical or mental impairment that substantially limits one or more major life activities, has a record of such impairment, or is regarded as having such impairment. If a parent needs a provider to care for children with physical impairments or chronic illness, please call the FCC office for information.

Youth Center

The Youth Center assists active duty personnel and DoD civilians by offering a safe learning environment for youths ages 6 to 18. Located in Building 1143 near Fowler Park, the Youth Center is affiliated with the Boys and Girls Clubs.

Continuing programs include homework assistance, computer resource, job referral, community service projects, youth transition programs, social programs, sports programs, instructional classes, before-and-after school programs, summer and holiday camp programs.

Annual programs include the Boys and Girls Fine Arts Contest, the Boys and Girls Club Photography Contest, the Teen Talent Show, the Boys and Girls Club Youth of the Year Program, and the Youth Holiday Fashion Show.

Youth ages 11 to 13 are welcome to join the Boys and Girls Club "Torch Club," which guides them in becoming productive citizens. Youth ages 14 to 18 will benefit from the Center's career preparation program and financial skills classes, as well as the Boys and Girls Club "Keystone Club," which promotes leadership and citizenship.

Program specific calendars can be picked up directly at the Youth Center or by clicking on the links above. The calendars list events, cost, and time.

For further information, visit the Youth Activities Center office, or call (623) 856-7470 or (623) 856-7471.

Education Services

The Education Services Flight, located on the third floor in building 1150, offers a variety of educational services and programs for active duty Air Force personnel. Some, but not all programs and/or services are also available to Air Force family members and DoD civilians and their family members. Programs and services include:

The Air Force Tuition Assistance program pays 100 percent of an Airman's tuition cost for college courses up to a semester hour cap of $250 and up to a maximum of $4,500 per fiscal year.

On-base colleges and universities with degree programs that can be completed (within a two to three year period) by students attending classes part time (off-duty). All five on-base schools (Rio Salado Community College, Park College, Wayland Baptist University, Embry Riddle Aeronautical University, and Webster University) grant some credit to Airmen for Air Force training or Professional Military Education. All five programs are open to civilians and military family members.

Educational counseling and advisement services to include academic planning, college course/program selection and requirements, providing information about financial aid and scholarship programs, about college and university programs within the Phoenix area, as well as information about colleges and universities throughout the United States.

Community College of the Air Force for active-duty Air Force, Reserve, and Air Guard is a program that combines military technical school credit, professional military education credit and/or credit earned via testing with college credit culminating in an Associate of Applied Science Degree.

Defense Activity for Non-Traditional Education Support Testing Program provides many examinations free of charge to active duty, Reserve, and National Guard personnel. There are more than 100 tests for which college credit can be earned. Other types of tests available include college entrance exams such as the Scholastic Aptitude Test, the Graduate Management Admission Test, etc. Some, but not all, tests are available to family members and other civilians, but are not provided free of charge. For more information, call (623) 856-7722.

Medical Assistance

TRICARE

The TRICARE Service Center offers guidance on your health care benefits. Additionally, this office will assist non active-duty beneficiaries in obtaining health care required outside of our military treatment facility. Health care for you and your family members is important. Don't wait until you are sick to find out how to obtain care. As soon as you arrive, stop by the TSC to choose the TRICARE option under which you prefer to obtain your family's health care. Active duty personnel assigned to Luke are automatically enrolled in TRICARE Prime and assigned to a Luke Primary Care Manager based on their assigned squadron. All TRICARE eligible beneficiaries choosing to obtain routine healthcare at the 56th Medical Group must enroll in TRICARE Prime and select one of the PCM Teams at the Medical Group. The TSC is located on the second floor of the Medical Group (Building 1130). This office can provide literature and answer questions you may have regarding all your health care benefits, not just TRICARE. TriWest Regional Representatives can also be reached at (888) TRIWEST (874-9378).

Medical Right Start

Medical Right Start is a medical in-processing program for the whole family that incorporates the Preventive Health Assessment program, TRICARE enrollment, and an introduction to the 56th Medical Group. This best practice program is offered twice a month at the 944th Medical Squadron classroom, Building 1144, from 8 a.m. to 2 p.m. Call (623) 856-3294 or 856-4494 for more details and scheduling.

Medical Services

If you would like information on clinics or would like to make an appointment, please log on to www.luke.af.mil/56mdg or call (623) 856-CARE (2273) between 7 a.m. and 4:30 p.m.

Routine active-duty sick call patients are seen by appointment Monday through Friday. Call (623) 856-CARE (2273) and press number "4" to schedule all appointments. Patients experiencing severe pain, swelling, infection or oral trauma (i.e. split lip or tooth/teeth knocked loose) during normal daytime duty hours can call (623) 856-CARE (2273) and press the number "4" to let the medical staff know you are en-route.

Base Services

Veterinary Services

Services provided at the base veterinary clinic include vaccinations, parasite checks, deworming, health certificates and treatment for zoonotic disease on an appointment basis. The staff also registers pets maintained in base housing. The clinic is located just north of the Lightning Gate in Building 1107. The clinic is open from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday. For information or to schedule an appointment, call (623) 856-6354.

Banking

Armed Forces Bank is located in front of the commissary. A second office is located inside the base exchange at the rear of the store. The bank offers a variety of accounts, loans, and credit services, in addition to online banking and electronic bill payment. For more information, visit www.afbank.com on the Web or call (623) 535-9766 or (800) 929-2265.

Credit Union

Credit Union West, in Building 1535 just south of the base exchange on Commissary Road, offers a variety of savings and checking plans, including IRAs, money market and certificate accounts, credit cards, auto and personal loans, mortgage loans, and home equity lines of credit. ATMs are located at the credit union and at the Fighter Country Inn lodging office. For more information, visit www.creditunionwest.org on the Web or call (602) 631-3200 or (800) 621-0287.

Recreational Vehicle Parking and Storage

Luke AFB does not have an abundant supply of available parking spaces for recreational vehicles and RV storage space is also limited. Newcomers with RVs should seek storage either on base or at off-base locations immediately upon arrival. Temporary parking and storage of RVs on base will not exceed 72 hours. Personnel needing on base parking may contact the lodging office at check in for parking locations.

American Red Cross

The American Red Cross, through its military and social services department, provides a worldwide system of emergency related services that are available to members of the military and their families. These services include: a communications network available to service members and their families during time of emergency; verification of emergency leave information for military commanders to help them make informed decisions to meet the interests of the service member and the military; access to financial assistance to members of the military and their families when an urgent family crisis arises; confidential counseling; information and referral; training in health and safety; disaster assistance; and volunteer programs.

The American Red Cross is located in Building 1150, Room 3112 and is open from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Friday. They can be reached at (623) 856-7823 or (623) 303-1183 after regular duty hours.

Base Exchange

The Luke Base Exchange complex offers the main store, a food court and several concessions including the beauty and barber shops, optical, florist, Enterprise car rental, GNC, laundry/dry cleaning, alterations and various specialty shops, plus a three story parking garage for the convenience of our customers. The Food Court offers Popeye's Chicken, Frank's Franks, Robin Hood Deli, Anthony's Pizza, Charley's sandwiches and Starbucks. Other retail facilities on Luke include the Military Clothing Sales Store, the Shoppette and the Base Service Station. Burger King and the base theater are across the street from the main exchange and a Subway and Pizza Hut Express are located in the Community Center on the west side of the base. For the latest in catalog shopping, information about AAFES and employment opportunities, visit the Web page at www.aafes.com.

Commissary

The commissary is available to all authorized active-duty and retired military personnel and their families. With new improvements and additions, the Luke commissary is one of the largest in the Air Force. Call (623) 935-3821 for more information.

Snack Bars

The Army and Air Force Exchange Service has introduced new concepts in snack bar service. In addition to the food court located in the main exchange, AAFES also provides mobile meal-serving truck service throughout the base for distant and odd-shift military personnel needs.

Crustano's Plaza Deli, run by the 56th Services Squadron, is located in the Mission Support building, Building 1150, on the third floor. Crustano's offers a variety of breakfast and lunch options at reasonable prices. For more information call (623) 856-3141.

U.S. Post Office

Located in Building 545 on Mustang Street, the U.S. Postal Service office provides stamps, money orders, special handling mail, COD packages and claims. Credit and debit cards are accepted. Hours of operation are 8 a.m. to 1:15 p.m. and 2:25 to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday. There is no weekend service.

Misc. Information

Vehicle Property Tax

Service members may operate motor vehicles in Arizona using their home state's driver's license and license plates or may register the vehicle in Arizona. Family members must obtain an Arizona license to drive legally.

Service members with vehicle title solely in their name, and who are non-residents of Arizona, may register their cars in this state without paying the Arizona personal property tax, but must pay a small vehicle registration fee. The tax exemption form is available at your orderly room or the legal office and must be signed by your commander or an attorney.

This form, plus an emissions test certification, must be presented to the Motor Vehicle Division in order to register your vehicle in the state.

A service member who holds joint title to a vehicle with a spouse is entitled to the tax exemption for only half of the tax.

Traffic

The speed limit at Luke is 25 mph unless otherwise noted. Speed laws are strictly enforced by RADAR.

A valid stateside issued driver's license, current vehicle registration, and proof of insurance are required for vehicle operation on base. To register vehicles, provide military identification, valid driver's license, current state registration and proof of insurance. Failure to show proof of insurance may result in a one-year suspension of driving privileges on base. For people who want to register their vehicle in Arizona, additional information is available during in-processing.

The Clean Air Act, 42 USC 7418(d), requires all military personnel registering vehicles on base with out-of-state license plates to furnish proof of compliance with local emissions inspection requirements. Emissions testing must be accomplished in Maricopa County at a state operated emissions testing facility prior to registering a vehicle on base which also includes motorcycles, diesels, motor homes, and recreational vehicles.

Orderly rooms and the Pass and Registration office will document vehicle owner compliance at the time the owner is issued a base decal for the vehicle. If a person plans to obtain an Arizona vehicle registration, an emissions test is still required. However, vehicle operators are not required to show emissions compliance if vehicle is registered through the state of Arizona.

When registering a motorcycle on base, the owner must complete an approved motorcycle safety course and possess a course completion card. Temporary motorcycle registrations will only be issued after the owner presents a letter from the base safety office indicating enrollment in an approved motorcycle safety course. Personal Protective Equipment (PPE) is mandatory for all motorcycle operators on-base. Military members are also required to wear a helmet at all times, on or off-base while operating a motorcycle.

Driving Under The Influence

Arizona laws are tough on first-time offenders and even tougher on those who develop a record of driving while intoxicated or under the influence of alcohol.

In Arizona, you are considered under the influence if your blood-alcohol level measures .08 percent or higher. By driving on Arizona roads or on base, you consent to have your blood alcohol content tested.

Legal Residence

Many people are confused by the terms “legal residence,” “residence,” and “domicile.” Generally, your residence is the place you are living.

Domicile or legal residence refers to your home state and the state of which you are a citizen. In addition to establishing your liability for state personal income taxes, your legal residence determines a number of other important matters as well. Some examples are:

- Liability for state inheritance tax
- Where your will is to be probated and who is qualified to act as your executor or guardian of your minor children

- The right to vote
- Bonuses for wartime services
- The right to homestead, veterans’ claims or tax exemptions
- Whether you or your children may attend a state college without paying higher fees required of out-of-state legal residents
- Property rights of spouses and rules for divorce or marriage dissolutions

Those who decide to become legal residents of Arizona should register to vote in the state, register their vehicle in Arizona, obtain an Arizona driver’s license, establish Arizona as a permanent address on official records (W-4 and personnel records), and file an Arizona income tax return.

Time Zone

Arizona remains on Mountain Standard Time year-round with no changes for daylight-saving time.

Servicemembers Civil Relief Act

For all active duty service members, a basic understanding of the Servicemembers Civil Relief Act is a must. The SCRA is a law passed by Congress that gives all active duty service members special legal protections. Some of these protections include a 90-day extension to stay court hearings to administrative hearings, if the service member requests it. Interest rates are capped at 6 percent interest pre-service loans. The SCRA provides eviction protection section by precluding evictions from premises occupied by service members for which the monthly rent does not exceed $2,400. The SCRA extends the right to terminate real property (or apartment) leases to active duty soldiers moving pursuant to permanent change of station orders or deployment orders of at least 90 days. The SCRA also has provision allowing the termination of automobile leases for use by service members and their dependents. Pre-service automobile leases may be cancelled if the service member receives orders to active duty for a period of 180 days or more. Automobile leases entered into while the service member is on active duty may be terminated if the service member receives PCS orders to a location outside the continental United States or deployment orders for a period of 180 days or more. These are just a few of the provisions of the SCRA that protect service members. If you have a question about the SCRA, please contact the legal office.

Luke Air Force Base History

Luke Air Force Base

Luke Air Force Base is named for the first aviator to be awarded the Medal of Honor—2d Lt. Frank Luke Jr.

Born in Phoenix in 1897, the “Arizona Balloon Buster” scored 18 aerial victories during World War I (14 of these German observation balloons) in the skies over France before being killed, at age 21, on Sept. 29, 1918.

In 1940, the U.S. Army sent a representative to Arizona to choose a site for an Army Air Corps training field for advanced training in conventional fighter aircraft.

The city of Phoenix bought 1,440 acres of land which they leased to the government at $1 a year effective March 24, 1941. On March 29, 1941, the Del. E. Webb Construction Co. began excavation for the first building at what was known then as Litchfield Park Air Base.

Another base known as Luke Field, in Pearl Harbor, Hawaii, released its name when the base was transferred to the Navy in June 1941, and the fledgling Arizona base was called Luke Field at the request of its first commander, Lt. Col. Ennis C. Whitehead, who went on to become a lieutenant general as commander of Air Defense Command in 1950.

The first class of 45 students, Class 41 F, arrived June 6, 1941 to begin advanced flight training in the AT-6, although only a few essential buildings had been completed.

Flying out of Sky Harbor Airport until the Luke runways were ready, pilots received 10 weeks of instruction and the first class graduated Aug. 15, 1941. Capt. Barry Goldwater served as director of ground training the following year.

During World War II, Luke was the largest fighter training base in the Army Air Force, graduating more than 17,000 fighter pilots from advanced and operational courses in the AT-6, P-40, P-51 and P-38, earning the nickname, “Home of the Fighter Pilot.”

Luke Air Force Base History

By Feb. 7, 1944, pilots at Luke had achieved a million hours of flying time. By 1946, however, the number of pilots trained dropped to 299 and the base was deactivated Nov. 30 that year.

Soon after combat developed in Korea, Luke field was reactivated Feb. 1, 1951 as Luke Air Force Base, part of Air Training Command under the reorganized U.S. Air Force.

Students trained in the P-51 Mustang and F-84 Thunderjet. Flying training at Luke changed to the F-100, and on July 1, 1958, the base was transferred from Air Training Command to Tactical Air Command.

Luke continued its tradition of providing fighter training for allied nations when an F-104 program for German Air Force pilots and a program in the F-5 for pilots from Third World nations began in 1964.

During the 1960s, thousands of American fighter pilots left Luke to carve their niche in the annals of Air Force history in the skies over Vietnam.

In July 1971, the base received the F-4C Phantom II and assumed its role as the main provider of fighter pilots for Tactical Air Command and fighter forces worldwide.

In November 1974, the Air Force's newest air superiority fighter, the F-15

Eagle, came to Luke. It was joined in December 1982 by the F-16 Fighting Falcon, which officially began training fighter pilots Feb. 2, 1983.

Luke units continued to set the pace for the Air Force. The 58th TTW had two squadrons—the 312th and 314th Tactical Fighter Training Squadrons—conducting training in the newest C and D models of the Fighting Falcon.

The 405th TTW received the first E model of the F-15 Eagle in 1988 and two of its squadrons—the 461st and 550th—began training in this dual-role fighter.

In July 1987, the Reserve function at Luke changed when the 302nd Special Operations Squadron deactivated its helicopter function and the 944th Tactical Fighter Group was activated to fly the F-16C/D.

The early 1990s brought significant changes to the base. As a result of defense realignments, the 312th, 426th and 550th TFTSs were inactivated as were the 832nd Air Division and the 405th TTW. The F-15A and B models were transferred out, and the 58th TTW, being the senior wing at Luke, was re-designated the 58th Fighter Wing and once again became the host unit at Luke.

In April 1994, after 24 years at Luke, the 58th Fighter Wing was replaced by the 56th as part of the Air Force Heritage program. Air Force officials established the program to preserve Air Force legacy and history during a time of military draw down. The 56th FW was one of the most highly decorated units in Air Force history, and it was named to remain part of the active fighter force while the 58th was reassigned as a special operations wing to Kirtland AFB, N.M.

Units flying the F-16 Fighting Falcon are the 308th, 309th, 310th, 425th, 61st, 62nd, 63rd and 21st Fighter Squadrons.

Frank Luke Jr.

For several months, the grave was marked with a wooden cross that read, "Unknown American Aviator." To the French people of Murvaux, France, who were eyewitnesses to his last flight, and who buried him with what honors the Germans would permit, this unknown was the hero of the war.

These bits of evidence from various sources, when pieced together led to the identification of this aviator. The cross over his grave now bears the inscription "2nd Lieut. Frank Luke, Jr. Pilot, 27th Aero Squadron; 18 victories. Killed in action Sept. 29, 1918." The young lieutenant's record and details of his last flight disclose a story as inspiring as ever to stir people's admiration, and a death in action as valiant as anyone to ever earn a country's highest award.

His story starts in Phoenix May 19, 1897. Luke grew up in the desert and was known as one of the best athletes at Phoenix High School. He was captain of the track team and a member of the basketball and football teams.

Soon after the U.S. entered World War I, the 20-year old Luke enlisted as a private in the Signal Corps. From there he entered pilot training and entered combat in France as a new member of the 1st Pursuit Group, 27th Aero Squadron.

His exploits ranged only a scant 17 days, but in this time, as records now reflect, he destroyed 14 German balloons and four aircraft, earning him the title of the "Arizona Balloon Buster."

Luke's commander, Maj. H.E. Hartney, said of him, "No one had the sheer contemptuous courage that boy possessed. He was an excellent pilot and probably the best flying marksman on the Western Front. We had any number of expert pilots and there was no shortage of good shots, but the perfect combination, like the perfect specimen of anything in the world, was scarce. Frank Luke was the perfect combination."

While balloons sound insignificant, in WWI's trench warfare environment they were critical. They served as observation posts and enabled both armies to look deep behind one another's lines.

The hydrogen-filled balloons were expensive and of great military value. Normally protected by heavy anti-aircraft gun batteries, there was usually a flight of pursuit planes stationed nearby. To attack a balloon was practically suicide.

But for whatever reason, these were Luke's voluntary objectives. Some surmised it was because of the easy confirmation as the fireball fell from the sky with a plume of smoke. On Sept. 12, 1918, Luke shot down his first balloon. His last flight was Sept. 29, 1918. At least 13 people in the village of Murvaux, France, watched his final blaze of glory. That little group later made a sworn affidavit of his actions that day.

They said they saw an American aviator with a squadron of Germans pursuing and shooting at him. He descended suddenly and vertically toward the earth, then straightened out and flew toward Briers Farm where he found a German balloon, which he shot up and burned in spite of incessant enemy fire. He destroyed two other balloons while still flying through hostile fire both from troops on the ground and the German fighters.

He did not escape unscathed. Even though already wounded, he attacked one more observation balloon and the Frenchmen saw it burst into flames and plummet to the ground.

Luke descended to within 50 meters of the ground and opened fire on enemy troops, killing six and wounding as many more. But his time was limited. His wounds and the damage to his aircraft forced him to land. As German soldiers surrounded him on all sides, he drew his .45 caliber pistol and defended himself until he fell, mortally wounded from a bullet in his chest.

Infuriated by the savagery of the American's final attack, the German commandant of the village refused to have straw placed in the cart that removed Luke's body. He also refused to allow some women to shroud his body with a sheet. Witnesses reported he kicked Luke's body and snapped, "Get that thing out of my way as quickly as possible."

Two men, Cortlae Delbert and Voliner Nicolas, loaded the Arizonan's body on a wagon, and escorted him to the cemetery and buried him.

His courage in combat not only earned him his nickname, but also the Medal of Honor. His awards included the Distinguished Flying Cross, the Italian War Cross and the Aero Club Medal for Bravery. In 1930, the American Society for the Promotion of Aviation named him the nation's greatest air hero.

Though unmarried, Luke came from a large family, and many in the Valley of the Sun today carry on the Luke family name.

56th Fighter Wing

Luke's 56th Fighter Wing was first activated Jan. 15, 1941, as the 56th Pursuit Group, in Savannah, Ga. Its earlier history was marked by frequent moves, the first to North Carolina in May 1941 and then to New York in 1942. Using P-39 and P-40 aircraft, the unit flew air defense patrol until June 1942, when the group became the first to train with and fly the P-47 Thunderbolt.

The 56th left for England Jan. 6, 1943. During the following two years, pilots of the 56th destroyed more enemy planes and listed more aces than any other Army Air Force group in the 8th Air Force, including the top two aces in Europe. By the war's end, the 56th's motto—"Cave Tonitrum," meaning "Beware the Thunderbolt"—was highly respected by the allies and their enemies.

On Oct. 18, 1945, the unit was inactivated. It was reactivated May 1, 1946 at Selfridge field, Mich., as part of the Strategic Air Command's 15th Air Force. It included the 61st, 62nd and 63rd Fighter Squadrons. As part of a restructuring, the 56th Fighter Wing was activated Aug. 15, 1947, and the 56th Fighter Group was assigned to the new wing.

In July and August 1948, a major operation of the 56th involved 16 of the wing's F-80's. The flight proceeded to Furstenfeldbruck, Germany, by way of Maine, Labrador, Greenland, Iceland and Scotland. Although the operation was not connected with the Berlin airlift, which was in progress, it did focus world attention on the U.S. Air Force's ability to rapidly deploy jet fighters during a crisis.

The wing was transferred from Strategic Air Command to the Continental Air Command's 10th Air Force Dec. 1, 1948, and the mission of the wing's tactical units was shifted to air defense. The unit was re-designated as the 56th Fighter Interceptor Wing Jan. 20, 1950. Its 61st, 62nd and 63rd Fighter Interceptor Squadrons converted from the F-80 Shooting Star to the F-86 Sabre jet in April 1950.

The wing, with the exception of its tactical squadrons, was inactivated Feb. 6, 1952. The tactical squadrons were reassigned to new air defense wings as part of a general reorganization of the Air Defense Command.

Luke Air Force Base History

Almost nine years later, having been re-designated the 56th Fighter Wing (Air Defense); the wing was reactivated at K.I. Sawyer AFB, Mich., again with an air defense mission. The wing controlled a single tactical unit, the 62nd FIS, flying the F-101 Voodoo.

From Feb. 1, 1961 to Oct. 1, 1963, the 56th was part of the Sault Sainte Marie Air Defense Sector. From Oct. 1, 1963, to Jan. 1, 1964, the wing was an important part of the Duluth Air Defense Sector. Under both sectors, the 56th participated in many ADC exercises, tactical evaluations and other air defense operations. The single tactical squadron was placed directly under Duluth Air Defense Sector Dec. 16, 1963, leaving the wing without a tactical mission. On Jan. 1, 1964, the 56th was assigned to SAC and inactivated.

Slightly more than three years later, the wing was once again activated, this time at Nakon Phanom Royal Thai AFB, Thailand. The unit was designated the 56th Air Commando Wing and had a complex combat mission in the war then raging in Southeast Asia. Assigned to 13th Air Force, the 56th received operational direction from 7th Air Force in Saigon. The combat and support operations of the wing in Southeast Asia were numerous and varied. Until Aug. 1, 1968, the wing operated as an air commando organization. From Aug. 1, 1968 to June 30, 1975, the 56th was designated a special operations wing.

Special missions were the rule rather than the exception during the entire period of the wing's stay in Thailand. It strongly supported the Southeast Asia conflict in a wide variety of specialized, as well as general operations, directly carrying the fight to the enemy. The wing and its units participated in every military campaign beginning with the Vietnam Air Offensive, Phase II. The wing's headquarters earned unit awards with the combat "V" device and Republic of Vietnam Gallantry Cross with Palm. Individual units of the 56th shared in some of these awards as well as earning others on their own.

On June 30, 1975, the 56th U.S. Air Force Hospital and 56th Consolidated

Aircraft Maintenance Squadron, two of the wing's subordinate units, were inactivated. The wing itself, together with its supply and transportation squadrons and its combat support group (the latter containing its security police and civil engineering squadrons) moved without personnel or equipment to MacDill AFB, Fla. The wing was re-designated the 56th Tactical Fighter Wing and assigned to Tactical Air Command's 9th Air Force.

The 1st TFW and several newly activated units bearing the "56th" designation replaced similar units bearing the "1st" designation. The inactive 61st and 62nd FS were re-designated as tactical fighter squadrons and the 63rd Fighter Interceptor Training Squadron was moved without personnel or equipment from Tyn-dall AFB, Fla., re-designated as a tactical fighter squadron and assigned to the 56th TFW. Finally, the 4501st Tactical Fighter Replacement Squadron, later re-designated the 13th Tactical Fighter Training Squadron, and the U.S. Air Force Regional Hospital, MacDill, were re-designated from the 1st to the 56th TFW.

On Oct. 1, 1981, the 56th had its designation changed once again. The wing changed from a tactical fighter wing to a tactical training wing. This designation was brought about because of the conversion from the F-4D Phantom II to the F-16 Fighting Falcon. The transition process began in November 1979, and was completed in June 1982.

With the change in the wing's designation, each of its squadrons also had name changes. The 61st, 62nd and 63rd became tactical fighter training squadrons and the 13th was inactivated July 1, 1982. The 72nd TFTS was activated on the same day and was one of the four squadrons of the 56th.

June 27, 1988, marked another transition for the 56th. The wing began its conversion from the F-16 A/B models to the updated F-16 C/Ds. That was followed by another reorganization which saw the 56th re-designated as a fighter wing Oct. 1, 1991, and its flying units once again became fighter squadrons.

With the F-16 C/Ds, the 56th remains the primary F-16 aircrew and maintenance training wing in the Air Force. The 56th was reassigned to Luke AFB April 1, 1994. Under the 56th Fighter Wing, which retains its F-16 C/D training mission, are the 308th, 309th, 310th, 61st, 62nd, 63rd, 21st and 425th Fighter Squadrons.

56th Fighter Wing

56th Fighter Wing

The host command at Luke AFB is the 56th Fighter Wing, under Air Education and Training Command's 19th Air Force. The wing's mission statement is, "Train The World's Greatest F-16 Fighter Pilots and Maintainers, While Deploying Mission Ready Warfighters."

The wing, with its headquarters located in Building 452, provides command guidance and operational control of the 56th Operations Group, 56th Maintenance Group, 56th Mission Support Group and 56th Medical Group, as well as being directly responsible for several functional areas.

Command and Control

The 56th Fighter Wing Command Post serves as the nerve center for all Luke AFB operations. A duty controller is available 24 hours a day at (623) 856-5800.

Command Chief Master Sergeant

The command chief master sergeant is the 56th FW commander's representative for all enlisted activities. The command chief is available in wing headquarters, Building 452, and may be reached at (623) 856-5616.

Protocol

The Protocol staff advises on proper protocol for all on-base events attended by the wing commander or vice wing commander; and works directly with a point of contact for military ceremonies. Protocol is the focal point for organizing all distinguished visits to Luke AFB including military and high-level civilians.

The office is located in wing headquarters, Building 452, and can be reached at (623) 856-5604 or 856-5605.

Public Affairs

The focal point for providing information on Luke issues, programs and base events to Airmen, the community and members of the news media, the Public Affairs Office is located in Building 452. The staff conducts base tours, provides speakers for civic organizations in the community, publishes the weekly newspaper, “Thunderbolt,” and is the commander’s liaison between the base and local community and media organizations. All media requests concerning Luke people, programs and events must be coordinated through Public Affairs. Call (623) 856-5853 for more information.

Community Initiatives Team

The Community Initiatives Team is the primary liaison between the 56th Fighter Wing commander and surrounding political subdivisions, developers and major stakeholders interested in coordinating compatible land development in areas impacted by the flying mission of Luke AFB. The CIT coordinates offices of technical expertise such as airspace and civil engineering in their interaction with the community, county and state officials.

Inspector General

The Inspector General is the eyes, ears and conscience of the base. The IG is an independent agency that investigates complaints, allegations of reprisal, improper mental health referrals, and fraud, waste, and abuse. It conducts administrative investigations designed to ensure efficient and effective mission accomplishment. The IG provides training and education for all base personnel on IG issues and procedures, provides assistance where wrong doing is not present, and referrals to appropriate agencies chartered to handle each respective situation to ensure that the integrity of the system is maintained.

The IG serves as the wing’s Congressional Liaison Officer to members of Congress for all matters pertaining to Luke Air Force Base. Finally, the IG exercises the 56th FW and is in charge of the exercise evaluation team through the IGI office. The IG office is located on the first floor of Building 1150.

Staff Judge Advocate

The legal office, located on the second floor of Building 1150, provides confidential advice to all service members concerning personal civil matters and military affairs.

Attorneys are available to provide advice on issues of marriage, divorce, adoption, insurance, personal injury, claims, rentals and leases, indebtedness, wills, and estate planning. The legal office also provides powers of attorney.

Air Force lawyers can not represent members in civilian court, in civilian business matters or fill out civilian legal paperwork. However, attorneys can offer legal advice preventing problems from escalating. Legal assistance is available several days a week during specific periods on a walk-in basis; call the legal office for current hours. Legal advice is not given on the phone. Notary service is available from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. each workday. Please call (623) 856-6901 for assistance.

Safety

Located in Building 470, the safety office includes flight, ground and weapons safety staff. A mandatory local conditions class for all newly assigned Luke personnel, both military and civilian, is held during Right Start orientation. Family members are also encouraged to attend the class. Call (623) 856-6941 or (623) 856-6105 for more information.

Historian

The historian documents activities of Luke AFB and provides historical reference services. The historian is located in Building 1150, and can be reached at (623) 856-6328.

56th Comptroller Squadron

The 56th CPTS includes financial services, financial analysis, non-appropriated fund oversight, quality assurance and a command section. The unit’s overriding goals are customer service and fiscal execution. Recent changes have made it possible to improve the ability to service customers with fewer resources.

Some of these advances include the Government Travel Card program, electronic funds transfer for payments, myPay, centralized accounting and faster support for military pay processing. Financial services will probably be one of the most important stops for a newcomer. It is located in Building 1150, where customers can get military, civilian and travel pay assistance at the centralized customer service counter.

As part of the in-processing program newcomers are scheduled for a finance briefing where they are assisted in completing their travel voucher and any pay questions are answered. Upon arrival, newcomers, will have their master military pay account updated to reflect their proper entitlements at Luke. Direct deposit is required for all military personnel, so to aid in a smoother in-processing newcomers are encouraged to maintain their direct deposit account during PCS. For more information, call (623) 856-7028.

Equal Employment Opportunity

The Equal Employment Opportunity Office serves as the wing commander's advisor on discrimination complaints. This office processes EEO complaints of civilian employees and/or applicants for employment at Luke AFB. This office conducts and monitors all Mediation Sessions of workplace disputes for Luke AFB. The EEO office is located in Building 1150, Suite 2112 and can be reached at (623) 856-7113.

Military Equal Opportunity

The Military Equal Opportunity staff is qualified to assist Luke people with specialized problems in the areas of equal opportunity and treatment, human relations and other problems. The MEO office is located in Building 1150, Suite 2112 and can be reached at (623) 856-7711.

Chapel

The Luke Chapel Team is committed to ensuring spiritual care for all. Four chaplains and five support personnel are assigned to administer an extensive religious program in two chapels. Our mission is to facilitate a proactive spiritual needs based ministry, positively impacting the 56th Fighter Wing and AEF missions anytime, anyplace

Chaplain offices and administrative offices are located in the Luke Community Chapel (referred to as "LCC") located between the Thunderbolt Club and the Fitness Center. The Chapel on the Mall (referred to as "COM"), located near the base airpark, is a historic Luke structure dating back to 1941.

If you are planning a wedding in one of our two chapels, we encourage you to contact us once you set a date because wedding times must be scheduled several months in advance. Call (623) 856-6211 to reserve one of the chapels.

Counseling appointments may be scheduled through the chapel secretary, (623) 856-6211 or with your squadron chaplain directly. An on-call chaplain may be reached after duty hours by calling the Command Post at (623) 856-5800.

The chapel program is designed to meet as many spiritual needs as possible. The worship schedule is listed below:

56th Mission Support Group

56th Mission Support Group

The 56th Mission Support Group's mission is to sustain the F-16 Fighting Falcon, provide for the community, and deliver responsive combat support anytime, anywhere. The seven squadrons of the group, 1,965 members strong, perform the critical installation management that helps keep the wing flying. These men and women are sortie generators. They serve more than 94,000 people including active duty, reserve, civilians, students, family and retirees.

The base has approximately $396 million in land, building and real property including 4,200 acres at Luke AFB and 1.7 million acres at the Barry M. Goldwater range complex.

The 56th Mission Support Group headquarters is located in the Support Center, Building 1150, on the east side of Litchfield Road.

56th Security Forces Squadron

The 56th SFS provides force protection services in Building 179, located immediately north of the AAFES Service Station on the West side of the base. This facility houses the command section, armory, information and personnel security, resource protection, reports and analysis, confinement, investigations, the wing antiterrorism program, U.S. Protect, law enforcement and security operations. Base entry lists are coordinated through the police services branch located in Building 179.

For assistance with routine matters call the law enforcement desk at (623) 856-5970 or 856-5971. To report a crime, suspicious activity or other emergency, call 911 from an on-base phone. If using a cell phone, you must tell them you need the Luke AFB 911 dispatcher.

Restricted area badges and long/short term passes are available at the South Gate Visitor Reception Center. Contractor badges (short and long term) to include sub-contractors will be issued CAC cards at the Military Personnel Flight Customer Service in Building 1150 on the second floor. Vehicle registration is accomplished by squadron and group orderly rooms, but can also be done at the South Gate and Lightning Gate Visitor Reception Centers. All newcomers, civilian and military, must register their vehicles on base within 15 duty days of arrival. Retirees and infrequent visitors are not required to register their vehicles on-base, but are highly encouraged to do so.

56th Mission Support Group

Duty weapons training is conducted by the Combat Arms section, located in Building 909, and all Security Forces

Training, READY training, and Security Forces mobility functions are located at the El Mirage facility at the intersection of El Mirage and Glendale Avenue, two miles east of the base.

56th Civil Engineer Squadron

The diverse mission of the 56th Civil Engineer Squadron includes fire protection, explosive ordnance disposal (EOD), readiness, design and construction, environmental management, family housing, resource management, and operations and maintenance of Luke and the 1.7 million acre Barry M. Goldwater Range.

The fire and emergency services flight ensures both our aircraft and facilities remain fire-safe. The readiness flight ensures both squadron and wing personnel are always ready to deploy and respond to any threat. The EOD flight directly supports the Luke flying mission through weapons safing and range clearance operations. The environmental flight continues to lead the way with new and diverse programs that will enhance not only Luke, but also the community that surrounds it.

Other areas in the squadron include the housing flight, which assists all personnel with their on and off base housing needs, the Engineering Flight which works strategic planning issues for the future development of the base and oversees the design and construction of base assets accomplished by contract and the operations flight. Operations is often thought of as the heartbeat of the organization. From maintaining various utility systems to grounds maintenance and paving roads, the operations flight does it all with pride.

The CE squadron headquarters is located on the north end of the base, just inside the north gate.

56th Communications Squadron

The 56th Communications Squadron provides communications and information capabilities supporting Luke AFB.

Keeping an eye on transforming the Air Force mission to better, faster and less expensive methods of operation, the 56th Communications Squadron continuously plans for programming of acquisition and installation of the latest available technologies enhancing Luke's primary missions of training fighter pilots and combat ready crew chiefs. They manage and oversee compliance to Air Force standards for all Luke AFB information technology including small computers, the base area network, and the base telephone switch. Acting as the eyes and ears for the fighter wing commander on all communications and information matters, the 56th Communications Squadron leverages information technology for more effective fighter operations, maintenance, support and medical operations.

Squadron personnel maintain and operate a myriad of complex systems necessary to run the Air Force's largest fighter training mission. Mission Systems Flight maintains navigational aids, air-to-ground radio, air traffic control and landing, and security systems. Plans Flight provides contracted telephones and telephone operator services including access to the Defense Switched Network. Information Systems Flight operates the Air Force Network Control Center providing data network services for the entire base populace, and the wing information assurance office defending Luke in the information domain. Support Flight runs the Postal Service Center providing United States Postal services and official mail, while supporting all Luke publications, the Freedom of Information Act program, and all photo, video, and graphic arts required by all Luke and many regional missions. Operating with personnel in eight separate facilities, squadron personnel fuse as one in their dedication to excellence.

The squadron motto is "Loquimini Tonitrum," translates to "Speak the Thunder." The "Comm Bats" of the 56th Communications Squadron operate wherever, whenever, and however it takes to support all Luke missions and to be the preeminent providers of communications and information capabilities.

56th Contracting Squadron

Located in Building 26, the 56th Contracting Squadron, the Dealing Eagles, awards more than $50 million annually in appropriated and non-appropriated funded contracts and manages more than $200 million in contracts supporting the 56th Fighter Wing, the 944th Fighter Wing, Fort Tuthill Air Force Recreational Area, Gila Bend Air Force Auxiliary Field, the 1.7 million acre Barry M. Goldwater Range and other key tenant units.

The 56th Contracting Squadron consists of three separate and distinct operational flights. The first flight, 56th Contracting Squadron Acquisitions Flight A, otherwise known as 56th Fighter Wing Acquisition Flight, provides full and complete acquisition support to all 56th and 944th Fighter Wings and tenant unit customers. Acquisitions Flight A is responsible for satisfying customers' mission requirements through the award and administration of a broad range of contract actions for commodities, services and limited construction. Major services such as the Food/Mess Attendant, Base Linen, and Base Packing and Crating contracts fall under the purview of Acquisition Flight A and are valued at over $6 million. This flight is also responsible for acquisition support to the 56th Range Management Office, executing all Operations and Maintenance requirements for Gila Bend Air Force Auxiliary Field and the Barry M. Goldwater Range. In addition to the range O&M requirements, they are also responsible for the $14 million Range Residue Removal effort. 56th Contracting Squadron Acquisition Flight B, also known as the Civil Engineering or Construction Flight, provides acquisition support for all base infrastructure requirements and Base Civil Engineer managed services. These requirements and services are identified and developed by the 56th Civil Engineer Squadron, and include alterations, repairs, renovations and construction of real property such as the $6.6 million gates project. Service contracts such as military family housing maintenance valued at $1.4 million, base custodial services at $1.6 million, and various high interest environmental and archeological projects are also administered by the Construction Flight. Acquisition Flight B is responsible for the contract award and administration of Simplified Acquisition of Base Engineering Re-quirements and various Indefinite Delivery Indefinite Quantity construction contracts such as airfield and base paving, base electrical requirements, and interior and exterior facility upgrades, which in total exceed $65 million.

The third flight, 56th Contracting Squadron Plans and Programs Flight, is the data processing and management hub of the unit. Without the Plans and Programs Flight our streamlined electronic procurement system would come to a stand still and virtually bring to a halt the speed in which we award contracts to support the Air Force's largest fighter wing. The Management Analysis Team contained within this flight is responsible for performing trend analysis, computer, networking and help-desk type support and providing automated/non-automated interface for internal and external organizations. In addition, this flight also serves as the installation program management office for the 56th Fighter Wing Government Purchase Card Program.

The Government Purchase Card Program Office manages 456 cardholders, 102 billing officials and more than 34,000 transactions with expenditures averaging over $20 million annually. Finally, and equally important in our role of mission support, the 56th Contracting Squadron is in the business of training, equipping and deploying Contingency Contracting Officers worldwide for the U.S. Air Force Expeditionary Forces. Whether it's supporting the customer at Luke Air Force Base or the war fighter at a deployed location, The Dealing Eagles of the 56th Contracting Squadron will live true to their motto: "We Make It Happen." For further information regarding the 56th Contracting Squadron call (623) 856-7162 or DSN 896-7162.

56th Logistics Readiness Squadron

The 56th LRS operates in various locations throughout the base with the command section and warehouse located in Building 945.

For more information, call the community center staff at (623) 856-7152.

Aquatics

The 56th Services Squadron has recently made improvements in the aquatics facilities. The highlight was the installation of the large waterslide at the Silver Wings pool.

Adult and youth swim instruction is by far the most popular program offered. Learning the basics is the primary goal, with emphasis on honing skills and improving self-confidence. We train our own instructors, so consistency of instruction is maintained. Recreational activities include open swim, lap swim, get fit/stay fit, unit fitness programs and water aerobics.

For more information on the Aquatics programs call (623) 856-6267 or (623) 680-9334.

Falcon Dunes Golf Course

Whether you're a serious golfer you'll enjoy Luke's gorgeous Falcon Dunes Golf Course.

Located just north of Luke Air Force Base, Falcon Dunes is truly one of the top military golf courses in the world. Situated at the corner of Northern Avenue and Reems Road, this 18 hole, par 7—championship layout features mounded contours that frame rolling fairways and undulated greens.

Besides the breathtaking views of the majestic White Tank Mountains, the course is also well known for the unique, native desert landscaping that outlines the course.

This Gary Panks design is available for use by all military and government employees, both active and retired. Already considered the "flagship" of the military golf courses, Falcon Dunes has been awarded the best golf course in its major command in four of its first five years in operation. Take advantage of the state-of-the-art, 8,250 square foot club house which houses the Falcon Dunes Restaurant.

The pro shop provides everything golfers need to prepare for a one-of-a-kind golf experience. The roomy practice facility contains putting and chipping greens, as well as a lengthy, turf-grass practice range. The P.G.A. staff can also meet your game development needs by providing professional instruction to both adults and juniors.

56th Mission Support Group

56th Mission Support Squadron

The 56th MSS includes Military Personnel Flight, Civilian Personnel Flight, Family Support Center, Education Services Flight, Airman Leadership School, and the First Term Airman Center.

Civilian Personnel

Located in Building 1150, this office administers the civilian employee programs, establishing positions, assuring affirmative action recruitment and advancement opportunities, and providing assistance on employee/labor relations concerns.

Military Personnel Flight

Customer service is a key element of the Base Newcomer In-processing (BNI) Session. The session is conducted every Monday, Wednesday and Friday at 9 a.m. All newcomers will first in-process with their Commander Support Staffs and then with the MPF. Finance has been included in the BNI session to help alleviate an inconvenience for newcomers.

Please note: All in-processing must be completed before any permissive TDY can be taken. If you are an accession, a one-on-one in-processing appointment can be scheduled. If you need assistance, please contact your Commander Support Staff.

Airman Leadership School

The Professional Military Education Flight, located in Building 156, conducts the Airman Leadership School. This comprehensive 192-hour course prepares selected senior airmen for supervisory positions and fosters a commitment to the Profession of Arms.

The curriculum includes comprehensive hours of study in Leadership, Communicative Skills, and the Profession of Arms. The Airman Leadership School Flight Chief is available at 856-7737.

First Term Airman Center

Located in Building 1146, the First Term Airmen Center transitions first duty station airmen from training to a mission-oriented environment. This is accomplished through a standardized curriculum of 10 academic duty days with 57 different briefings covering mandatory in-processing topics as well as optional base and community information and some ancillary training. FTAC prepares new airmen to become mission ready in minimum time while providing the airmen with a solid foundation to make sound decisions.

Manpower and Organization Office

The MO office provides manpower management support to the 56th Fighter Wing and tenants. It also advises on requirements determination, organization structure, and on the best uses of manpower resources in peacetime and wartime. This office also administers productivity and IDEA programs, and provides consultant services. The MO office serves as the wing's OPR for PERSLOAD and wing performance measures.

MO also serves as the wing's focal point for AETC's organizational excellence initiatives. The Manpower and Organization office is located in Building 156 and can be reached at 856-3211 or 856-3211.

56th Medical Group

The Luke AFB Clinic is an outpatient medical facility staffed to support and provide a range of medical services to include primary and specialty care. Primary care services consist of Family Practice, Pediatrics, Internal Medicine and Flight Medicine. Specialty care services consist of Allergy/Immunizations, Optometry, Behavioral Health, Orthopedics, Physical Therapy, and Women's Health. For more information on our clinics, please log on to www.luke.af.mil/56mdg, or call (623) 856-CARE (2273).

The 56th Medical Group consists of four squadrons:

- The 56th Medical Operations Squadron provides outpatient/ambulatory clinical services to TRICARE Prime beneficiaries through its primary and specialty care clinics with referral and/or admission to civilian providers and facilities as needed. The Women's Health Clinic is limited to nurse practitioner services only and is located on the third floor of the 56th Medical Group's main building, Building 1130. The Allergy/Immunizations Clinic is located in Building 1130, directly northeast of the main clinic as are Family Advocacy services in Building 1142. Behavioral Health Services are located in Building 317 on the west side of base.

- The 56th Dental Squadron provides active-duty members comprehensive dental care while supporting the readiness of the 56th Fighter Wing to respond to worldwide contingencies.
- The 56th Medical Support Squadron provides support services such as managed health care, resource management, and TRICARE flight. All ancillary services, such as pharmacy, radiology, and laboratory, which are currently assigned to Medical Support will be transitioned to Medical Operations later this year.
- The 56th Aerospace Medicine Squadron (Building 810) provides care for flying personnel and their families, and is home to the Military Public Health, Bioenvironmental Engineering, and Wellness programs.

Additional details regarding specific services:

TRICARE Operations and Patient Administration Flight

The TOPA Flight is responsible for ensuring our Air Force Family is educated and supported in using their TRICARE medical benefits and related patient administrative functions.

Flight services include the enrollment process, beneficiary counseling, resolving medical billing issues [related to the referral and authorization processes] and marketing. If medical care is needed outside the Medical Group the flight helps coordinate medical patient travel when appropriate, may initiate the medical referral, and after may follow one via its case and/or utilization management functions.

TOPA is supported by the TRICARE Service Center (TSC), ran by the Western Region's Managed Care Support Contractor, TRIWEST. The TSC is located on the second floor of the Medical Group and offers guidance on your healthcare benefits, supports local marketing efforts, develops the local healthcare network (for services not offered in the Medical Group) and works with the TOPA Flight to create a seamless care delivery system.

As soon as you arrive on station, stop by the TSC to enroll in TRICARE. This is very important and helps ensure access to Medical Group and network services. Active duty personnel assigned to Luke are automatically enrolled in TRICARE Prime and assigned to a Luke Primary Care Manager based on their assigned squadron. All TRICARE eligible "Air Force Family" members (to include retirees less than 65 years old, and their dependents) living within a 30 minute drive from the Medical Group are enrolled to a Primary Care team as well.

Administratively, TOPA is responsible for booking Medical Group appointments, to include supporting TRICARE On-Line; Quarters and Line of Duty determination programs, tracking active duty military seen and/or admitted in civilian hospitals, Medical Evaluation Board process, medical records and Release of Information functions, and supporting and monitoring of the Medical Group's Healthcare Insurance Portability and Accountability Act (HIPAA) Privacy Officer's responsibilities.

The Flight's special programs include the Special Needs Identification and Coordination (SNIAC) Program (formerly known as the Exceptional Family Member Program) and the Dependant Overseas Clearance process. The SNIAC Program provides assistance and guidance to military families who have adults and/or children with special medical, educational or emotional needs. The Dependant Overseas Clearance process helps ensure dependents with special medical needs or considerations that will be accompanying you overseas receive appropriate medical care.

The TRICARE Flight is responsible for ensuring our beneficiaries are educated regarding their TRICARE medical benefits. This includes beneficiary counseling, debt collection issues, patient travel, referral management and medical records. Patients requiring further information or assistance may contact the Customer Service Center Representative at (623) 856-7586.

Flight Medicine

Flight Medicine supports the flight line during flying operations to include primary care for aircrews and controllers and their families. Flight Medicine is responsible for flying and non-flying exams all occupational health exams and Preventive Health Assessments for those personnel assigned to their team. Force Health Management, the Preventive Health Assessment Clinic, and the Family Practice Clinic manage all other physical exams.

The Flight Medicine Clinic is located in Building 810, between the base gymnasium and the flight line. Call (623) 856-CARE (2273) for more information.

Health and Wellness Center

The Health and Wellness Center is dedicated to prevention and health enhancement. The HAWC provides a number of prevention programs to active duty, dependents, retirees, civilian, and contract workers. Classes include weight management, cholesterol, diabetes, stress management, and commissary tours. A tobacco cessation program is offered by contacting the HAWC to set up an individual appointment. Zyban and nicotine patches are available to TRICARE beneficiaries from the Luke pharmacy.

Appointments for tobacco cessation can be made by calling (623) 856-3870 or the main HAWC line. Individual nutrition and fitness counseling are available by a diet technician or an exercise physiologist. We have a variety of health and nutrition information literature available free of charge. Interested individuals should call the HAWC at (623) 856-3830 for more information or to make an appointment for classes.

Dental Clinic

The Dental Clinic is located on the first floor of the main hospital directly across from the pharmacy waiting area. Routine dental care is limited to active-duty personnel. The specialties offered to active-duty personnel within the facility are comprehensive general dentistry and periodontics. Dental staff members may refer patients requiring complex specialty care to local civilian dental specialists. Routine dental care such as examinations, fillings, cleanings, and sick call for active duty are provided by appointment only.

Routine active-duty sick call patients are seen by appointment Monday through Friday. Call (623) 856-CARE (2273) and press number "4" to schedule all appointments. Patients experiencing severe pain, swelling, infection or oral trauma (ex. split lip or tooth/teeth knocked loose) during normal duty hours, 7:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., should call (623) 856-2273 and press the number "4" to let us know you are en-route. We will take care of you ASAP. If you suffer these symptoms after duty hours, please call the after-hours answering service at (623) 856-CARE (2273). The after-hours answering service will contact our on-call dentist to evaluate/treat your complaint promptly. Dental care for family members and retirees is on an emergency basis only. Active duty family members are encouraged to enroll in the TRICARE Dental Program at www.ucci.com. Retirees may enroll in the TRICARE Retiree Dental Program at www.trdp.org.

Pharmacy Operations

Clinic Pharmacy: 7:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Friday. The pharmacy is closed Saturdays, Sundays, federal holidays and commander-directed "down" days.

Satellite Pharmacy: 7:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Friday; and from 8:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Thursday. The satellite pharmacy is closed Sundays, federal holidays and commander-directed "down" days.

Commissary Apothecary: 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Friday; and from 9 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Thursday. The commissary apothecary is closed Sundays, federal holidays and commander-directed "down" days.

The Clinic Pharmacy provides new prescription service via the CHCS computer system for all enrolled TRICARE

Prime patients. Basically, if an MTF provider sees you, we fill the prescriptions at the Clinic Pharmacy. The Clinic pharmacy uses the Q-matic number system. Once your number is called, go to the appropriate window and your prescription(s) will be processed and filled. If you decide to come back to pick up your filled prescriptions, go directly to the pick-up window. Remember, we only keep filled prescriptions for 5 duty days and they will be return to stock.

The Satellite Pharmacy fills all prescriptions written by civilian providers for all categories of patients, provided that the patient's military ID shows medical eligibility.

Patient confidentiality and privacy are protected by federal law and are overriding concerns when medications are picked up by anyone other than the patient for whom the medication is intended. The federal law on releasing prescriptions to patient representatives is very specific. Medical treatment facilities may release medications to individuals representing the patient in accordance with the following definitions:

Patient Representative

Includes spouses, parents and legal guardians, and others. MTFs may release prescription medications to designated patient representatives providing all the following requirements are met:

- The patient representative must possess a valid government-issued photo ID card
- Patient's military identification card (or copy of the front and back)
- Signed permission slip designating the agent
- Current DD 2569 on file (designated by a "blue" card)

Dependent Children

Verification of the patient representative's relationship to the dependent child may be accomplished through the DEERS system. If an individual other than the parent or legal guardian of the dependent child is designated to act as the patient's representative, this individual must comply with the patient representative requirements stated above.

56th Operations Group

56th Operations Group

The 56th Operations Group, headquartered in Building 997, has operational control and responsibility for the entire fighter training mission at Luke. The group is composed of an operations support squadron, a training squadron, eight fighter squadrons of F-16 Fighting Falcons and two detachments.

56th Operations Support Squadron

The 56th OSS is responsible for providing a “world class” training environment for the 56th Fighter Wing.

The 56th OSS provides airfield management services, air traffic control, weather forecasting and warning services, weapons and tactics expertise, aircrew training management, aircrew life support training, intelligence support, operations scheduling, and flight records management for a 10-squadron fighter operations group. Additionally, the OSS operates an intelligence formal training unit for the entire F-16 intelligence community and manages an annual flying hour program of over 50,000 hours and 38,000 sorties.

56th Training Squadron

The mission of the 56th TRS is to provide academic- and ground-based instruction to support training the world’s finest F-16 pilots and weapons directors. The 56th TRS trains almost one-half of all the Air Force’s new fighter pilots each year. It conducts F-16 academic and device training in accordance with major command formal syllabi including initial instruction, transition courses, senior officer courses, Thunderbird and aggressor pilot instruction, forward air control, night systems and Block 50 specialized conversion courses. The 56th TRS also provides academic, simulator and live mission training for more than 75 upgrading weapons directors annually. All 56th TRS training is conducted across six facilities on Luke and the Papago Park military reservation in central Phoenix. This squadron provides Air Force acceptance and quality control of courseware and manages all aircrew training devices for the 56th FW.

21st Fighter Squadron

Congress approved the PEACE FENGHUANG Program in 1992 under the signature of former President George Bush. PEACE FENGHUANG is Chinese for "Phoenix," the mystical Egyptian bird that arose from ashes and is based on the fact that a similar program had been proposed but subsequently cancelled by President Jimmy Carter. The current program is in excess of $5.9 billion and is the second largest foreign military sales program in the history of the U.S. Air Force.

Training foreign pilots is not new to Luke Air Force Base. The first foreign students to train in the "Valley of the Sun" were Chinese pilots during World War II. In February 1942, the first Chinese pilots were trained in the P-40 Warhawk, P-47 Thunderbolt and eventually the P-51 Mustang. These pilots had a major impact in the defense of China. Many of these pilots became members of a Taiwan squadron designated 21st Fighter Squadron "Blackjacks." The Blackjacks were one of the most successful squadrons during the war and were unmatched in their aerial victories against Japanese forces. Concurrently, the U.S. 21st Fighter Squadron was in the China theater attacking Japanese forces with the P-40 Warhawk and P-51

Mustang. It is in recognition of the exploits of both of these squadrons that the 21st Fighter Squadron "Gamblers" was activated at Luke.

The 21st Fighter Squadron began training Taiwan pilots in February 1997, 55 years to the month that the first Chinese pilots began training here at Luke.

In the spirit of the legendary Phoenix, the squadron rose from the dust at Luke to win the illustrious Frank Luke Jr. Award, recognizing the best squadron in the world's largest fighter wing, in its first year of existence. That stellar feat was followed up by a repeat performance in 1998, the first time in 60 years that a squadron has won the award two consecutive years.

61st Fighter Squadron

The 61st Pursuit Squadron (Interceptor) was constituted Nov. 20, 1940. It was activated Jan. 15, 1941, in Savannah, Ga., training in P-39 Aircobra and P-40 Warhawks.

The 61st later moved to Charlotte, N.C., in May 1941 and again to Charleston, S.C., in December 1941 to help defend the East Coast.

In November 1942, P-47 dive test pilots achieved 725 mph, faster than the speed of sound. In 1944, it was recognized as the first fighter squadron in the European theater to score over 100 victories. During 1943 to 1945, the 61st produced 19 Aces, the highest of any squadron in Europe, destroying 248 aircraft in the air and 67.5 aircraft on the ground. Lt Col "Gabby" Gabreski is the all-time 61 FS and 56 FW ace with 34.5 WWII and Korean kills.

It was deactivated October 1945 at Camp Kilmer, N.J. and reactivated at Selfridge Field, MI training in P-47's while transitioning to P-51 Mustangs.

In April 1950, the 61st transitioned to the F-80 Shooting Star and later was the first squadron to fly the F-86A Sabre. The 61st was deactivated July 25, 1960, at Truax Field, Wisc. flying the F-102 Delta Dagger.

In June 1975, the 61st was reactivated at MacDill AFB, Fla., flying the F-4 Phantom (later the F-4D). In April 1980, the flying mission changed to the F-16 A/B Fighting Falcon. The 61st transitioned in June 1988 to flying the F-16 C/D and the squadron was deactivated at MacDill AFB in January 1994. The squadron was reactivated on April 1, 1994 at Luke AFB, Ariz., replacing the former 314th Fighter Squadron flying the F-16 C/D Fighting Falcon. The squadron's current mission is to train the best F-16 pilots in the world. Their nickname is the "Top Dogs."

62nd Fighter Squadron

With American involvement in World War II looming on the horizon, the 62nd Fighter Squadron was constituted as the 62nd Pursuit Squadron as part of the 56th Pursuit Group at Savannah Air Base, Ga., on Jan. 15, 1941. The squadron immediately began training for its wartime missions, rapidly transitioning through the P-35, P-36, P-39, and P-40 aircraft. On Dec. 7, 1941, the 62nd stepped up to defend the Northeastern United States from anticipated enemy air attack while it converted to the P-47 aircraft and prepared to deploy overseas.

The squadron arrived in England Jan. 9, 1943, and was declared operationally ready two months later and flew its first began training F-4 crews for tactical units around the world.

On Jan. 1, 1981, the squadron transitioned to the F-16 Fighting Falcon and continued to train fighter pilots until the squadron's inactivation May 12, 1993. The 62nd Fighter Squadron was reactivated March 18, 1994, at Luke Air Force Base, where it currently flies the F-16 Block 25 aircraft. Honors earned by the 62nd included two Distinguished Unit Citations, six Air Force Outstanding Unit Awards and seven campaign ribbons.

63rd Fighter Squadron

The 63rd was activated Jan. 15, 1941, at Savannah Air Base, Ga., as the 63rd Pursuit Squadron. It was originally assigned to the 56th Pursuit Group, which, like many pursuit squadrons organized in the early 1940s, initially flew Curtis P-35 and P-36 Hawks.

A year later the 63rd came under control of the 1st Interceptor Command and switched to the Curtiss P-40 Warhawks. A few months later it was re-designated a fighter unit and began flying the new Republic P-47 Thunderbolt.

In 1943, the 63rd moved to Camp Kilmer, N.J., then to England where it became one of the most successful squadrons in the USAAF during WWII. Flying escort for fighter sweeps ahead of U.S. bomber fleets, the pilots destroyed combat missions April 13. Two years later, the 62nd had emerged as one of the premier fighter squadrons in Europe.

Among its accomplishments were the first P-47 ground attack mission, the first operational use of rockets by a fighter, and the destruction of 357 enemy aircraft. The squadron participated in the "Big Week" which secured allied air superiority, escorted the first daylight bombing mission over Berlin, conducted interdiction missions during the Normandy invasion, and provided air support during the "Battle of the Bulge." On Oct. 11, 1945, the 62nd Fighter Squadron departed England and returned to the United States aboard the Queen Elizabeth.

As the newly organized United States Air Force developed a new mission, so did the 62nd. Flying the P-51 and P-80, the squadron performed escort duty for the Strategic Air Command bombers, deploying to Alaska and Europe in this role.

In 1948, "Spike" converted to the interceptor role, a mission the squadron would maintain until 1971. Stationed in the northern tier of the United States, the 62nd Fighter Interceptor Squadron flew the P-80, F-86 and F-101 on patrol against the ever-present Soviet bomber threat. A highlight from this era was the squadron capturing top F-101 squadron honors at the William Tell 1965 USAF Worldwide Weapons Meet.

On Sept. 1, 1974, the squadron began its long history as a fighter training unit. Activating at Tyndall Air Force Base, Fla., the 62nd assumed the mission of training F-4 and F-106 weapons instructors at the United States Air Force Interceptor Weapons School. The following October, the flag moved again; this time to rejoin the 56th Tactical Fighter Wing at MacDill Air Force Base, Fla., and

56th Operations Group

167.5 enemy aircraft in the air and 110 on the ground. After Germany's surrender, the 63rd returned to Camp Kilmer until inactivation on Oct. 18, 1945.

A year later, it reopened with the 56th FG at Selfridge Field, Mich., and briefly transitioned to the North American P-51 Mustang. In 1947, the 63rd became one of the first fighter squadrons equipped with the new Lockheed P-80 Shooting Star. Three years later, North American F-86A Sabres arrived, and in 1954, Northrop F-89 Scorpions became the 63rd's newest fighters.

The squadron was again inactivated on Nov. 1, 1957, and reactivated June 30, 1975, as the 63rd Tactical Fighter Squadron at MacDill AFB, Fla. Its mission was to train pilots and weapons systems officers for the F-4D Phantom II. The name changed slightly, but the mission stayed the same when the F-16A Fighting Falcon arrived and the 63rd became a tactical fighter training squadron in 1981.

On March 12, 1993, the 63rd Fighter Squadron transferred to Luke AFB, where it now flies the Block 42, F-16CG.

Campaigns the "Panthers" have supported include the Normandy invasion, Battle of the Bulge, Remagen Bridgehead and invasion of Holland.

Honors earned by the 63rd include two Distinguished Unit Citations, seven campaign streamers and the American Theater Service streamer.

308th Fighter Squadron

The 308th was constituted Jan. 30, 1942, as the 308th Pursuit Squadron (Interceptor) and was activated at Baer Field, Fort Wayne, Ind. The 308th is ranked as the tenth most highly decorated unit in Air Force history among the 152 fighter squadrons that were ever active.

After five months of training in the P-39 Bell Airacobra, the unit joined the war in Europe when it was assigned to a base in England in June 1942. The squadron's aircraft did not accompany the unit to England and 308th pilots and technicians spent a very short two months of intensive training in flying and fighting in the British Spitfire. The squadron became operational and flew its first combat mission on Aug. 18, 1942, when it attacked enemy positions in occupied France.

In November 1942, the unit moved to Gibraltar and supported the allied invasion of North Africa. In February 1943, the Spitfires of the 308th supported allied efforts which halted General Rommel's advance on allied positions.

In July 1943, Spitfires from the 308th provided support for Allied Forces as the Invasion of Italy began with the capture of Sicily. As Allied bomber forces operating from Italian soil began the strategic bombing of Axis petroleum and communications facilities in central Europe and the Balkans, the 308th was re-equipped with the North American P-51 Mustang to replace the shorter-ranged Spitfire.

In August 1944, the P-51s were involved in the invasion of Southern France. In December 1944, the first destruction of a German jet fighter by a 308th P-51 occurred. By war's end, the 308th had earned two distinguished unit citations and was involved in eight campaigns.

The squadron again pitted its aircraft against an enemy when it was assigned to Ben-Wah Air Base in Republic of Vietnam. For its efforts in Southeast Asia during the period Dec. 16, 1966, to Oct. 15, 1970, the 308th was awarded the Republic of Vietnam Gallantry Cross with Palm. The 308th Fighter Squadron also won the Air Force Outstanding Unit Award with combat "V" device.

On Oct. 1, 1986, the squadron was re-designated a fighter squadron and re-equipped with the F-16A and F-16B with the 31st Tactical Fighter Training Wing—the last active duty unit to fly F-16 A/Bs. The 308th was the first in the wing to transition to the Block 25 version of the F-16 C/D and subsequently to the Block 42 F-16 C/Ds.

The 308th was first assigned to Homestead AFB, Fla., and then to Moody AFB, Ga.; and on April 1, 1994, Luke AFB became the home of the 308th Fighter Squadron.

309th Fighter Squadron

The 309th was constituted Jan. 30, 1942, as the 309th Pursuit Squadron. Arriving in England in May 1942, it was designated as the 309th Fighter Squadron and began combat operations after trading its P-39 Aircobras for the British Spitfire.

From August 1942 to July 1943, the Wild Ducks spearheaded air offenses over North Africa and later participated in the invasion of Sicily while flying the P-51 Mustang. After the conquest of Sicily, the 309th began patrolling the sky over Italy and conducting bomber escort and ground attack missions during the two-year Italian campaign.

Following World War II, the 309th converted to the F-84 while at Langley Field, Va., and in 1948, completed the first jet fighter transpacific deployment. In 1957, the squadron transitioned to the F-100 Super Sabre and was re-designated as the 309th Tactical Fighter Squadron. The Wild Ducks flew combat operations in Southeast Asia from 1966 to 1970. While stationed at Tuy Hoa AB, Vietnam, the 309th proved their capabilities during all three Vietnam Air Offensives, including Operation Rolling Thunder.

Returning to Homestead AFB, Fla., the 309th traded the F-100 for the F-4 and flew the Phantom II from 1970 to 1986. In 1986, the squadron converted to the F-16 which it still flies today. The squadron arrived at Shaw AFB, S.C., in August 1992, narrowly escaping the devastation of Hurricane Andrew and was later deactivated in January 1994. After its arrival at Luke, the 309th was reactivated April 8, 1994.

The Wild Ducks produced 14 aces over the years totaling 161 kills between them. The 309th also received numerous awards, including two Air Force Outstanding Unit Awards, two Distinguished Unit Citations, one Presidential Unit Citation and one Republic of Vietnam Gallantry Cross with Palm. In addition, the Wild Ducks participated in 18 campaigns from World War II to Southeast Asia.

The squadron emblem is a 1944 Walt Disney production copyrighted design. It symbolizes the fighter mission and celestial navigation pioneered by this squadron, its around-the-clock mission readiness, and its striking power.

310th Fighter Squadron

The Tophats of the 310th Fighter Squadron trace their roots to January 1942, when the unit began as the 310th Pursuit Squadron. It was formally activated on Feb. 9, 1942 and was attached to the 58th Pursuit Group at Harding Field, La., where its pilots trained replacements to fly the Bell P-39 Aircobra aircraft.

Named a fighter squadron on May 15, 1942 at Dale Mabry Field, Fla., the 310th continued training pilots for P-39 Air Cobra, Curtiss P-40 Warhawk and Republic P-47 Thunderbolt aircraft. During World War II, the 310th saw combat in the Southwestern Pacific Theater and earned several awards including the Distinguished Unit Citation for action in the Philippine Islands on Dec. 26, 1944 and the Philippine Presidential Unit Citation.

After World War II, the 310th deactivated until 1952, when it was redesignated the 310th Fighter-Bomber Squadron in the 58th Fighter-Bomber Group on July 10, 1952 at Taegu Air Base, Republic of Korea. First equipped with the Republic F-84G Thunderjet from 1952, the squadron adopted the North American F-86 Sabrejet in 1954 and kept it through 1958. During the Korean Conflict, the squadron flew primarily air-to-ground missions supporting ground operations.

Participating in the Korea Summer-Fall 1952, Third Korean Winter and Korean Summer-Fall 1953 campaigns, the squadron again distinguished itself, earning the Republic of Korea Presidential Unit Citation. Osan AB, Korea, became the home of the 310th on March 19, 1955, and it stayed there until its inactivation in 1962.

In 1958, the 310th gave up its F-86s when it became the 310th Missile Squadron on June 15, 1958, assigned to the 58th Tactical Missile Group. It remained the home of the surface-to-surface Matador missile until 1962, when the missile left service, and inactivated on March 25, 1962.

On Dec. 1, 1969, the squadron resurfaced as the 310th Tactical Fighter Training Squadron; two weeks later, on Dec. 15, 1969, it formally joined other units at Luke. It has been here since, training pilots or weapons systems officers, first for the LTV A-7D Corsair II, then the McDonnell-Douglas F-4C Phantom II. In 1989, the first Block 42 F-16C/D in the Air Force inventory was delivered to the 58th Tactical Training Wing at Luke.

On Dec. 26, 1989, the Tophats were the first unit to deliver live ordnance on an uncontrolled range at night using the Low-Altitude Navigation and Targeting Infrared for Night, or LANTIRN, navigation pod. Additionally, they became the Air Force's first and only F-16 LANTIRN training squadron.

On Oct. 1 and Nov. 19, 1997, the 310th FS significantly expanded its mission to include Forward Air Controller-Airborne and Night Vision Goggles training. Additionally, the 310th FS developed and implemented the first Mobile Training Team concept of training for AETC. With this concept, AETC is able to train additional students off-station at no loss in training at Luke AFB.

Today, the 310th continues to train students in all aspects of employment in the F-16. The combined special training capabilities of LANTIRN, FAC-A, and NVGs make the 310th FS the one of the most unique and most combat capable squadron in the Air Force.

425th Fighter Squadron

Constituted as the 425th Night Fighter Squadron Nov. 23, 1943, and activated Dec. 1, 1943, the 425th was originally assigned to Orlando Air Base, Fla.

On Jan. 30, 1944, the 425th was reassigned to bases in California before arriving at its first European station at Chormy Down, England, May 26, 1944.

The 425th flew to its first home base on the European Continent, Vanes, France, Aug. 18, 1944. Aircraft, men, and equipment of the 425th moved north along with the Allied advance against Axis, Germany, May 2, 1945, just six days before "VE" day May 8, 1945. During the air war in Europe, the 425th flew the YP-61, A-20, P-61, and P-70 aircraft. The unit flew and fought in support of the Allied war effort in Normandy, Northern France, Rhineland, Ardennes-Alaska and Central Europe.

Between Sept. 9, 1945, and Sept. 1, 1946, the 425th was reassigned to various bases in California before being move to McChord Field in Washington. On Aug. 25, 1947, the 425th was inactivated.

On Oct. 15, 1969, the 425th was reactivated at Williams AFB, Ariz., as the 425th Tactical Fighter Training Squadron and assigned to the 58th Tactical Fighter Training Wing at Luke AFB, Ariz. The squadron's new mission with the 58th TFTW was to train aircrews from allied nations to fly and fight in the F-5. This training was accomplished at Williams AFB and also at bases in those nations.

On April 6, 1973, the First F-5E Tiger II was delivered to the 425th and gave the air forces of friendly nations a capability similar to that enjoyed by Soviet client nations whose forces were equipped with the MIG-21.

On June 21, 1989, the squadron's F-5 training program terminated after having produced 1,499 graduates. The 425th was inactivated on Sept. 1, 1989. On Dec. 30, 1992, the 425th was reactivated at Luke AFB under the designation 425th Fighter Squadron. The squadron re-established its foreign military training mission by providing advanced weapons and tactics continuation for Republic of Singapore Air Forces F-16 pilots and maintenance personnel. RSAF pilots and maintenance personnel are assigned to the 425th FS for two years.

During their tour of duty they receive advanced tactics training, participate in Red Flag, shoot live missiles at Combat Archer, and deploy to locations throughout the U.S. to participate in composite operations and dissimilar air combat exercises.

56th Maintenance Group

56th Maintenance Group

The 56th Maintenance Group provides aircraft maintenance on 188 F-16s for the Air Force's only active duty F-16 training wing. The 56th Maintenance Group generates more than 36,000 sorties compiling over 39,000 flight hours per year, playing a pivotal role in conducting safe and efficient training for more than 350 pilots every year. As the largest maintenance group in the Air Force, the 56th Maintenance Group consists of over 3,000 members operating on an annual budget of $161 million to maintain all assigned F-16s and engine assets, valued at more than $5 billion. The 56th Maintenance Group also directly contributes to Luke's second mission: training the world's greatest F-16 crew chiefs.

56th Aircraft Maintenance Squadron

The 56th Aircraft Maintenance Squadron is the largest aircraft maintenance squadron in the Air Force. The 56th Aircraft Maintenance Squadron provides intermediate and flight line maintenance for 107 Block 20, 25 and 50 F-16 C/D aircraft. Manned with 850 personnel, the squadron's primary focus is to ensure mission-ready aircraft are maintained to support the training mission for U.S. Air Force active and reserve components, Republic of Singapore Air Force and Taiwan Air Force F-16 pilots. In order to accomplish this task, the squadron is divided into five Aircraft Maintenance Units supporting their associate fighter squadrons. This squadron's Aircraft Maintenance Units are the 21st Aircraft Maintenance Unit "Gamblers," the 61st Aircraft Maintenance Unit "Top Dogs," the 62nd Aircraft Maintenance Unit "Spikes," the 309th Aircraft Maintenance Unit "Wild Ducks," and 425th Aircraft Maintenance Unit "Black Widows."

756th Aircraft Maintenance Squadron

The 756th Aircraft Maintenance Squadron "Jaguars" was activated Sept. 7, 2002. The squadron is responsible for maintaining 80 F-16 Block 42 aircraft and resources valued at more than $2.5 billion. The 756th Aircraft Maintenance Squadron provides direct support enabling Luke Air Force Base to meet its mission; training the best pilots and mission-ready crew chiefs. Maintenance is accomplished on the F-16 to allow pilots to fly in multiple configurations, day or night. The squadron also provides aircraft for Night Vision Imaging System training and enables the success of the “only” medium altitude navigation and targeting infrared for night and forward air control-airborne training squadron in the Air Force. The squadron’s Aircraft Maintenance Units are the 63rd Aircraft Maintenance Unit “Panthers,” the 308th Aircraft Maintenance Unit “Emerald Knights” and the 310th Aircraft Maintenance Unit “Top Hats.”

56th Maintenance Group

56th Equipment Maintenance Squadron

The 56th Equipment Maintenance Squadron is the largest squadron on Luke Air Force Base and in Air Education and Training Command. The 56th Equipment Maintenance Squadron provides an essential combination of both “on” and “off” equipment aircraft maintenance capability. The squadron supplies intermediate and flight line maintenance, phase inspections and delivery of aerospace ground equipment to support nine F-16 fighter squadrons.

The 56th Equipment Maintenance Squadron also provides complete corrosion control and aesthetic care of aircraft, flight line and ground equipment, as well as structural stress assessments and fabrication of numerous aircraft parts. Additionally, the squadron is responsible for the maintenance of armament systems and munitions support to all organizations within the 56th Fighter Wing.

56th Component Maintenance Squadron

The 56th Component Maintenance Squadron’s primary mission is to accomplish specialized maintenance of F-16 components, systems and support equipment. This includes inspection, repair and scheduled maintenance of aircraft propulsion, avionics, LANTIRN pods, pneudraulics, electro-environmental, egress and fuel systems for the Air Force’s largest fighter wing. Additionally, the 56th Component Maintenance Squadron repairs and calibrates test, measurement and diagnostic equipment used by over 190 organizations on Luke Air Force Base and throughout the southwestern United States.

The squadron also maintains engine trailers and maintenance stands necessary to accomplish its mission. The 56th Component Maintenance Squadron, with a workforce of almost 500, is organized into five flights: Propulsion; Accessories; Avionics; Test, Measurement and Diagnostic Equipment; and Programs.

56th Maintenance Operations Squadron

The 56th Maintenance Operations Squadron accomplishes many distinctly different, yet vitally important tasks. The 56th Maintenance Operations Squadron ensures the health of a fleet of F-16 aircraft and provides extensive maintenance analysis data and plans and scheduling functions. The squadron also oversees the nerve center of all maintenance operations, the Maintenance Operations Center.

Several other critical functions include the collection, tracking and forecasting of engine data on more than 200 engines and end of runway operations that provide the critical “last look” for aircraft prior to take-off. The Quality Assurance Office evaluates maintenance activities and provides feedback to key leadership and the Weapons Standardization section qualifies, certifies, and evaluates weapons loading and maintenance crews in the largest Weapons Standardization function in the United States Air Force. The extensive number of programs orchestrated by the 56th Maintenance Operations Squadron ensures the success of the largest Maintenance Group in the U.S. Air Force.

Tenant Units

944th Fighter Wing

The 944th Fighter Wing is one of more than 50 flying units in the U.S. Air Force Reserve. It reports to Headquarters 10th Air Force, NAS Ft. Worth Joint Reserve Bureau, Texas.

The mission of the 944th is to train F-16 pilots and all assigned reservists to provide combat ready warriors in support of any Air Force mission requirement. This training is accomplished by conducting one drill weekend per month and each reservist also performs 15 days of duty once a year. The Wing is staffed by approximately 1,200 reservists. The majority of these reservists reside full time in the greater Phoenix area.

The unit stands ready for rapid mobilization and has shown their flying skills as the first reserve fighter unit to fly operational missions with the coalition task force over Northern Iraq in support of Provide Comfort II shortly after Desert Storm and more recently Operations Northern and Southern Watch in Southwest Asia. The unit deployed more than 400 personnel and six F-16C aircraft to Aviano Air Base, Italy in support of Operations Deny Flight and subsequently Decisive Edge flying over Bosnia/Herzegovina enforcing UN Resolution 816.

The unit has been awarded the Air Force Outstanding Unit Award five times since its activation in 1987. It was also awarded the Best Reserve Flying Unit Award by the Air Force Association in 1993 and 2002 and has won numerous awards and trophies for its participation in Gunsmoke, the Air Force's worldwide gunnery meet held bi-annually at Nellis AFB, Nev., and William Tell Air-to-Air meet at Tyndall AFB, Fla.

The 944th includes three groups, ten squadrons and five flights. These include the 944th Operations Group, the 944th Maintenance Group, and the 944th Mission Support Group. The Squadrons and flights include: the 302nd Fighter Squadron, 301st Fighter Squadron, (associate unit) the 944th Mission Support Squadron, the 944th Civil Engineer Squadron, the 944th Security Forces Squadron, the 944th Maintenance Squadron, the 944th Aircraft Maintenance Squadron, the 944th Medical Squadron, the 944th Aeromedical Staging Squadron, the 944th Logistics Readiness Squadron, the 944th Operations Support Flight, the 944th Maintenance Operations Flight, the Military Personnel Flight, Services Flight and the 944th Communications Flight.

Additionally, the 944th Fighter Wing had approximately 100 reservists mobilized on active duty for two years in support of both Operations Enduring Freedom and Noble Eagle. On June 7, 2002, the 944th Fighter Wing graduated its first student pilot class of six new F-16 active duty pilots.

Since 9/11 hundreds of 944th Fighter Wing reservists have volunteered to support the global war on terrorism in many deployed overseas locations.

Det. 1, ACC Training Support Squadron

Det. 1 systematically analyzes, develops and evaluates training for Air Combat Command's major weapons systems. They are the command's acknowledged expert in the development of training devices and computer-based training to support operational flight training. Det. 1 is comprised of two organizational functions: the Training Systems Center and the CBT Division.

The TSC designs and fabricates aircrew training devices to meet unit-training requirements. Training devices are custom designed according to user inputs and built here. They vary in complexity from visual aids to complex computer driven trainers supporting our most advanced weapons systems.

The CBT division manages aircrew Computer Based Training Systems and develops interactive courseware for combat air forces worldwide. Active duty, Guard, Reserve and overseas commands rely on Det. 1 for quality aircrew training support.

607th Air Control Squadron

The 607th Air Control Squadron conducts formal initial qualification training for Air Control Squadron operations crew personnel in C2 tactics, techniques and procedures. They provide understanding of theater level execution and increased mission effectiveness through mission crew and aircrew interface. The 607th provides highly qualified surveillance technicians, weapons directors and air battle managers for joint forces and theater commanders with a worldwide mobile command and control capability for the conduct of offensive and defensive missions. Graduates are capable of deploying anywhere in the world on short notice.

The 607th is an Air Combat Command unit under the operational control of the 355th Operations Group, 355th Wing at Davis-Monthan AFB, Ariz. The 607th is the principal ground control radar support unit for the 56th and 944th Fighter Wings here, the 355th Wing and 162nd Fighter Wing from Tucson, and other aircraft operating in local airspace.

This 130-person unit maintains radar, communications, and computer equipment worth more than $85 million.

Training Det. 12

Activated in 1962, Detachment 12 is the largest training detachment in the U.S. Air Force. With instructional hours totaling more than 61,000 a year, the 65 members of the unit offer 34 courses of instruction designed to educate, motivate and inspire nearly 2,200 students annually.

Shoulder-to-shoulder, the unit provide F-16 aircraft maintenance training to hundreds of maintainers from the 56th Fighter Wing and those stopping through for training en route to locations worldwide. In addition to training the active duty Air Force, they also provide training to numerous international students as well as to Air National Guard and Air Force Reserve units. They also deploy to help these units with their training needs and conversions to the finest state-of-the-art weapons system.

One of the courses the unit provide for the technicians at Luke AFB include the Mission Ready Airman AFSC, or Air Force Specialty Code, awarding course. This course trains pipeline students from technical school on how to become a F-16 Tactical Aircraft Maintenance Specialist. The other courses offered vary from training Aerospace Ground Equipment technicians to training every other technician that maintains the F-16.

The unit maintains 21 aircraft maintenance trainers and first-class training facilities totaling 64,000 square feet, all valued at $24.6 million. The staff uses state-of-the-art computer technology to enhance course presentations and support digitized technical orders. The unit's commitment is to be on the leading edge of technology to offer the very best education to those attending their facilities or courses.

Home to the only F-16 Aircraft Maintenance Trainer Development Team, the unit blends today's and tomorrow's technologies with quality instructional techniques to steer Air Education and Training Command, Aeronautical Systems Center and Department of Defense contractors to develop trainers flexible enough to support training commitments as the weapon system evolves.

Area Defense Counsel

The Area Defense Counsel office is a tenant unit attached to the Air Force Legal Services Agency and operating independently of the 56th Fighter Wing and the base legal office. The ADC provides legal representation to active-duty members facing adverse actions such as courts martial, Article 15 proceedings, administrative discharges, LORs, referral EPRs and Reports of Survey.

The ADC is not in any way associated with the base legal office or the command structure of the 56th FW to ensure zealous client representation and no conflict of interest problems. The ADC office offers complete confidentiality to its clients. Its mission is to promote justice through fair representation of its clients.

The ADC office is staffed by one attorney and one paralegal. The ADC is an Air Force attorney who is selected to fill this unique role based on litigation experience, aptitude and military justice experience. The defense paralegal is usually a 5- or 7-skill level Air Force paralegal that also has extensive military justice training and office management experience.

The ADC office is part of the USAF Judiciary Western Circuit, currently based at Travis AFB, Calif. The Chief Circuit Defense Counsel for all the Western Judiciary is the direct reporting official for all ADCs in the western United States. The ADC's representation and advice is limited solely to military adverse actions against active duty members.

The ADC is not available to answer questions concerning civil law matters or claims issues. The office is located in Building 1150, Room 3015. Consultations are by appointment only. For emergency consultation during off-duty hours, contact the 56th FW Command Post at 856-5600.

Air Force Office of Special Investigations

The primary responsibility of AFOSI is to provide major Air Force investigative services to Air Force commanders. AFOSI efficiently conducts thorough and professional investigations, which enables commanders to take appropriate judicial or administrative action based on the facts in cases of criminal or fraudulent activity. AFOSI also conducts counterintelligence, anti-terrorism and personal protective service operations.

Because of today's peacekeeping role, the USAF is a primary target of hostile intelligence. As a combat support organization, AFOSI is the Air Force's primary arm to counter this threat. All special agents assigned work independently of base authorities, although not without coordination with the appropriate commander.

At times, investigative allegations can go and have gone beyond a particular AF facility. In these cases, AFOSI serves as the primary point of contact between the AF and other international, federal, state and local authorities, which might have an interest in or can lend support to a particular investigation.

This investigative liaison ensures complete and comprehensive investigative results for AF commanders. Assigned special agents are comprised of active duty AF and civilian members who report directly to the Detachment 421 Commander.

Air Force Audit Agency

The Air Force Audit Agency provides all levels of Air Force management with independent, objective, and quality audit services that include:

- Reviewing and promoting economic, effective, and efficient operations.
- Evaluating programs and activities and assisting management in achieving intended results.
- Assessing and improving Air Force fiduciary stewardship and the accuracy of financial reporting.

Gila Bend Air Force Auxillary Field and the Barry M. Goldwater Range

The eastern portion of the Barry M. Goldwater Range is managed by the 56th Fighter Wing Range Management Office. The 1.7 million acres of the range are located in southwest Arizona. The 700,000 acres that make up the western portion is managed by Marine Corps Air Station Yuma.

The range serves the U.S. Air Force and the U.S. Marine Corps as a training area for aerial gunnery, rocketry, electronic warfare and tactical maneuvering and air support; and a place to develop equipment and tactics. The key value of the Goldwater Range is that it is authorized for live-fire training, which is essential to the abilities of aircrew to survive and win in combat. The Goldwater Range has generally served these and similar purposes since 1941, when it was established to train U.S. Army Air Corps pilots for World War II. Changing capabilities have been significant: military aircraft in World War II could shoot down enemy aircraft from a distance of about 600 feet, while today's aircraft can engage and shoot down an enemy from as far as 25 miles. The Goldwater Range has sufficient air and land space to meet evolving tactical aviation training requirements.

The range is the center point of a semicircular array of military air bases, airspace, and ranges that form a highly flexible training complex. It lies within the flight radius of 12 Air Force, Marine Corps, Navy, Army, Air National Guard, and Army National Guard air bases in Arizona and southern California, as well as Navy aircraft carriers in the Pacific Ocean. This joint relationship delineates the increasingly unique significance of the BMGR as a national training asset.

The Gila Bend Air Force Auxillary Field serves as the hub for operations and maintenance on the Barry M. Goldwater Range. Gila Bend AFAF is also used as a primary divert airfield for aircraft that develop emergencies while flying on the range or during runway closures at Luke AFB due to weather or suspended runway operations.

Additionally, the auxiliary field serves as the training area where aircraft practice flying emergency patterns, as well as the location where the USAF Academy parachute team accomplishes approximately 6,000 jumps every year, and it is used to qualify aircrew with night vision goggles and lights-out landings.

The Barry M. Goldwater Range has played an integral role in the flying mission at Luke since both the base and the range were constructed in 1941. In the early years, it provided training for aircraft from both Luke and Williams fields. During World War II, the range complex consisted of a ground gunnery layout of five aerial ranges, measuring about five miles by 35 miles. Jurisdiction over the military detachment at Gila Bend fluctuated between Luke and Williams, and when Luke was deactivated in 1946, the military site at Gila Bend also was closed.

After advanced fighter training resumed at Luke in the early 1950s, the range facilities were modernized to provide technical advances in tactics, target facilities and aircraft. In 1952, the federal government took possession of a large tract of public-domain land for the purpose of extending the range. During the 1950s and 1960s, the facilities were expanded and modernized. In the spring of 1963, the name was changed from William's Bombing and Gunnery Range to the Luke Air Force Range. In 1987, the range was renamed in honor of Senator Barry M. Goldwater.

The Military Land Withdrawal Act of 1999 transferred land management authority for the Barry M. Goldwater Range from the Department of Interior's Bureau of Land Management to the Department of Defense, effective Nov. 6, 2001. This authority was subsequently delegated to Luke AFB and the 56th Range Management Office. Accordingly, the 56th RMO is not only responsible for Gila Bend AFAF and operations on the Barry M. Goldwater Range, they are now entrusted with the security and stewardship of the natural and cultural resources found on the range.

F-16 Fighting Falcon

F-16 Fighting Falcon

The sophisticated F-16 Fighting Falcon began performing the fighter training mission here Feb. 2, 1983.

This multi-role fighter is equally potent in air-to-air and air-to-surface situations, combining advanced fly-by-wire technology with relatively low-cost production and maintenance. Its maneuverability and combat radius exceed that of all threat fighter aircraft while operating in an air superiority role. In an air-to-surface role, the F-16 has an exceptional mission radius of more than 500 nautical miles, superior weapons delivery accuracy and excellent self-defense capability.

Because the F-16 is small, it is difficult to detect, visually or with radar, and hard to hit. The Falcon is only 47.6 feet long, with a span of 32.8 feet and measuring 16.4 feet to the tip of the tail.

The F-16's light weight is achieved without extensive use of exotic materials or at the cost of strength. Structural capability allows full exploitation of the unique F-16 maneuver characteristics. Design load limit is nine times the force of gravity with full internal fuel, in contrast to other fighters whose limits are 6.5Gs to 7.3Gs with only 60 to 80 percent internal fuel.

The F-16's high thrust-to-weight ratio and low-wing loading permit it to outmaneuver any threat aircraft in the classic air combat arena and consume a fraction of the fuel of an F-15E Eagle when performing the same mission.

The F-16 Fighting Falcon provides a significant increase in combat capability with a lower investment in money, manpower and fuel.

Local Area

History

Arizona's first inhabitants were Indians who migrated here 12,000 years ago across the land bridge, which once connected Alaska with Asia. When they were the only inhabitants of the area, the Indians lived in elaborate adobe dwellings, which often were as tall as a 10-story building. Many tribes, including the Apache, Hopi, Navajo, Tohono O'odham, Pima and several other small groups resided near what is now Phoenix.

Spaniards sent from Mexico in the early 1500's explored Arizona. When Mexico declared independence from Spain in 1821, Arizona flew the flag of Mexico. Then, for $10 million Gadsen Purchase, the United States obtained most of the land that is now known as New Mexico and Arizona.

Arizona rapidly expanded after 1853, when ranchers and miners fought the Indians who felt challenged by western expansion. Disputes between settlers and the Indians grew year by year, and in the 1800's, 20 percent of the U.S. Army was stationed in Arizona.

When Geronimo was captured in 1886, the Indian wars ended. The economy was boosted with the completion of the Santa Fe and the Southern Pacific railroads in the late 1800's.

A period of the "Wild West" descended on Arizona when outlaw gangs and renegade Indians roamed large areas of the state. The colorful shootouts in places like Tombstone were common; the "Gunfight at the O.K. Corral" between the Earps and Clantons symbolizes the lawlessness that ruled the territory. The Arizona Rangers eventually restored order around the turn of the century. Since becoming the 48th state in 1912, Arizona has maintained its proud heritage while attracting thousands on new residents each year.

Arizona is home to 21 Indian tribes on 20 reservations and has the largest number of Indian reservations in the United States. In 1940, the population was less than 500,000. It's now more than 5.1 million.

An extremely pleasant climate, vast natural beauty and strong economical base make Arizona an attractive place to live and work.

Geography

Arizona is a tremendously beautiful state. Arid deserts predominate in the south, and breathtaking mountain ranges rise from the desert floor in the center of the state. Northern Arizona has beautiful mountains, high deserts, and scenic canyons.

From the top of 12,633-foot Mount Humphreys near Flagstaff to the 70-foot Colorado River in Yuma County, Arizona has much to offer virtually everyone. Popular sites include the Grand Canyon, Hoover Dam, Painted Desert and Petrified Forest, London Bridge at Lake Havasu City, Sonoran Desert, red rocks of Sedona, Old Tucson, and hundreds of western mining towns with varied and interesting histories.

Luke Air Force Base is located in Maricopa County, and is approximately 30 miles northwest of central Phoenix. Though several communities surround the base, it was Glendale that annexed Luke as part of their municipality. The base is actually located about 10 miles from the city of Glendale.

Glendale is a dynamic and growing community located in the rapidly growing northwest part of the Phoenix metropolitan area (which is known as the "Valley of the Sun."). With a current population of over 225,000 residents, it has been one of the fastest growing cities in the United States for the past three decades. Only three Arizona cities—Phoenix, Tucson, and Mesa—have more residents.

Climate

More than 300 days of sunshine and low humidity make for a very comfortable and active lifestyle for Phoenix residents and visitors. Nine months out of the year, Valley residents enjoy mild, spring-like temperatures. The average high temperature is 88 degrees Fahrenheit and the average low is 64 degrees Fahrenheit. Average rainfall is about 7.66 inches.

Schools

Students in Arizona's fine educational system traditionally score above the national average on high school SATs. Phoenix area schools offer 80 vocational courses at the secondary school level. In addition, 130 private schools in Maricopa County offer an alternate choice for newcomers.

The public school system in Arizona is divided into elementary, high school and unified districts. Elementary school districts include kindergarten through eighth grades; high school districts range from ninth through 12th grades. Most of the existing junior high schools include just the seventh and eighth grades and are therefore in the elementary districts. Some school districts may have one or more schools, but many have just one school. And yet, some do not even operate a school, but instead transport their students to a school in another district. Each school district operates independently, maintaining its own student and personnel files, doing its own buying and hiring of personnel, and has its own salary schedule.

Those assigned to Luke have many opportunities to pursue higher education nearby. There are numerous educational and training facilities such as the American Graduate School of International Management, Arizona State University West Campus, Glendale Community College and Midwestern University's College of Osteopathic Medicine. All of these institutions are leaders in their areas of expertise. Arizona State University is recognized as one of the finest educational institutions in the United States. Its enrollment exceeds 38,000. ASU also offers a branch campus, ASU West in Glendale.

The Maricopa County Community College system provides an excellent choice for junior college students. The many diverse colleges and universities in the area serve a variety of educational needs.

Medical Services

The Phoenix area has a rich array of major medical services, with specialized services for heart, kidney, head injury and behavioral health care equal to any other major medical community in the country.

In addition to the modern and up-to-date hospital care, the Maricopa County General Hospital is recognized as one of the finest burn treatment facilities in the Southwest and in the nation.

Area Attractions

Phoenix

<http://phoenix.gov/DISCOVER/index.html>
www.phoenixcvb.com

The Greater Phoenix metro area encompasses Glendale along with a number of other communities, including Tempe, Scottsdale and Mesa. The region as a whole is known as “The Valley of the Sun” and offers a wealth of recreation possibilities. There is truly something for everyone in the Valley, be they a history buff, nature lover, art enthusiast, adventurer or sports fan.

More than three hundred arts and cultural venues—ranging from historic sites to performing arts theatres—dot the region. These venues celebrate the “Southwest” lifestyle and encompass the area’s Native American, Hispanic, African American and cowboy roots.

The wide variety of attractions in the Greater Phoenix region allows residents to “escape” for the day from the bustle of the city. Two zoos and an animal park allow guests to explore the creatures of the world without leaving home. Numerous venues allow patrons to experience life in the “Wild West.” There is even an assortment of water parks for cooling down during the warm summer months.

National Parks and Monuments

www.nps.gov

Canyon de Chelly National Monument

www.nps.gov/cach

(928) 674-5500

Approximately 4.5 hours northwest of Flagstaff on Highway 191

Canyon de Chelly represents one of the longest continuously inhabited areas of North America. The canyon is home to a large number of spectacular ruins of the ancient Puebloan culture known as the Anasazi. Canyon de Chelly National Monument is a unique member of the National Parks service, in that it is entirely composed of Navajo Tribal Trust Land. Within the park is a thriving community of Navajo people and some areas of the park are off limits to the general public without a Navajo guide.

Grand Canyon National Park

www.nps.gov/grca

(928) 638-7888

Approximately 1.5 hours north of Flagstaff on Highway 180

Grand Canyon became a National Park in 1919, following a number of years as a National Monument and a Forest Reserve. The canyon was carved over millions of years by the Colorado River and is almost 280 miles long with its width ranging from just a quarter-mile to more than fifteen miles wide. The resulting cut into the Colorado Plateau has exposed more nearly two billion years of the Earth's history stored in layers of rock. The Grand Canyon is one of the world's premiere natural attractions and brings over 5 million people to the state of Arizona yearly, including a large number of international visitors.

The monument, located within the Sonoran Desert, is home to the Organ Pipe cactus along with numerous other varieties of cacti and desert flora. The area is perfect for RV camping, tent camping and hiking.

Petrified Forest National Park

www.nps.gov/pefo

(928) 524-6228

Approximately 2 hours east of Flagstaff on Interstate 40

Petrified Forest National Park in northeast Arizona has one of the highest concentrations of petrified wood in the world. The park is connected to the multi-hued badlands of the Painted Desert and is one of the best geologic and fossil records of the Late Triassic Period found in the world. Many of the fossils from the region date back 225 million years. There are also a number of significant American Indian petroglyph and archeological sites within the park.

Sunset Crater National Monument

www.nps.gov/sucr

(928) 526-0502

12 miles north of Flagstaff
on Highway 89

Sunset Crater Volcano is the youngest of more than 600 volcanoes in the San Francisco Volcanic Field of Northern Arizona. These volcanoes range in age from 6 million years old to less than 1000 years old and helped form the Colorado Plateau. The area around Sunset Crater is still in the process of recovering from the eruption, which took place sometime between 1040 and 1100 A.D. A visitor's center has exhibits on the power of an eruption, the causes of it and the aftermath to follow.

Walnut Canyon National Monument

www.nps.gov/waca

(928) 526-3367

10 miles east of Flagstaff
on Interstate 40

Walnut Canyon, with its 350 foot high canyon walls, is home to more than 25 cliff rooms built by ancient Puebloan people. The monument has two main trails for experiencing home these people lived. The Rim Trail gives visitors an overview of the canyon, while the more strenuous Island Trail descends into the canyon and leads visitors to the cliff dwellings themselves.

Wupatki National Monument

www.nps.gov/wupa

(928) 679-2365

33 miles north of Flagstaff
on Highway 89

Wupatki National Monument is located nearby Sunset Crater National Monument. The area received a large influx of people shortly after the eruption of Sunset Crater Volcano due to the highly fertile farming lands created by the fallen ash from the eruption. A number of Ancient Puebloan cultures are represented by the ruins within the monument, ranging from the Kayenta Anasazi to the Sinagua, but the most impressive is Wupatki Pueblo. Meaning "Big House" in the Hopi language, Wupatki Pueblo is thought to have been the area's tallest and largest building of its time. Another significant structure found within the monument is a ball court similar to those found in Meso-America.

Heritage has no tolerance policy concerning physical aggression, intimidation or “put-downs.” We are a SAFE ZONE school. Heritage is NOT the school for everyone. If a child is prone to misbehavior and/or not doing his or her homework, he may not “make it” with our school. Students who are serious about education and their future will succeed at Heritage.

HERITAGE ELEMENTARY SCHOOL HAS:

- Spalding Phonics Reading Instruction
- Hands on Science
- Firm Classroom Management
- Sports Programs & Full Contact Football
- Computer Education
- Scholastic Chess Team
- Hot Lunch & Breakfast
 - Committed and Dedicated Teachers Who Care About Every Child
 - Close Communication With Parents And Positive Expectations For All
- Challenging Math Programs
- Reading & Spelling in “K”
- School Shirts/Dress Code
- Music & P.E.
- Bus Service-Specific Areas
- Sports Field & Gym

Are you tiered of the routine and mediocrity of large school’s?
Call now for the quality of a private school education at public school cost!

Heritage has five kindergarten classrooms featuring the best in MATH • LANGUAGE • ARTS • SOCIAL STUDIES and SCIENCE

Engle has 11 New Home Communities within 30 minutes of Luke AFB

We are very proud of making new home ownership possible for so many Luke AFB military and civilian personnel through the years. We're one of the largest and most respected homebuilders in America and in the greater Phoenix area, which is how we can offer so many home choices close to Luke.

Within minutes of the base, our 11 Engle neighborhoods offer a wide range of sizes, styles and prices – from easy maintenance townhomes and courtyard homes to sophisticated executive homes to family-sized luxury homes. And always, there's a good selection already built and ready for move in.

We specialize in assisting military relocations and have many tailored financing programs that suit the special needs of military personnel. We've even designated a special person you can call or e-mail for any help or information you need. She's Cholla Deprez at (480) 921-3103 or cdeppez@englehomes.com.

We look forward to serving you and to providing you with the finest new home on the market today.

Engle has 11 New Home Communities within 30 minutes of Luke AFB

We are very proud of making new home ownership possible for so many Luke AFB military and civilian personnel through the years. We're one of the largest and most respected homebuilders in America and in the greater Phoenix area, which is how we can offer so many home choices close to Luke.

Within minutes of the base, our 11 Engle neighborhoods offer a wide range of sizes, styles and prices – from easy maintenance townhomes and courtyard homes to sophisticated executive homes to family-sized luxury homes. And always, there's a good selection already built and ready for move in.

We specialize in assisting military relocations and have many tailored financing programs that suit the special needs of military personnel. We've even designated a special person you can call or e-mail for any help or information you need. She's Cholla Deprez at (480) 921-3103 or cdeprez@englehomes.com.

We look forward to serving you and to providing you with the finest new home on the market today.

VOICE MAIL INSTRUCTIONS

To Access Voice Mail upon Initial Activation:

DIAL 856-2000

- Enter your mailbox number (your mailbox number is your phone number that voice mail is on) 856+XXXX followed by the # sign.
- Enter the default password: 000000 (6 zeros) followed by the # sign.
- At this point, voice mail will tell you "your password has expired." Enter 84 to change your password. When you change your password, it must be at least 6 characters long. Please remember your password.
- Please access your mailbox within 48 hours of notification that your mailbox is activated. If not accessed within this time period, voice mail will lock you out of your mailbox.
- If a wrong password is entered three times in a row you will be locked out of your mailbox. If this happens, call ext. 856-4400 to report your problem. They will open a trouble ticket to reset your mailbox password. Whenever your password is reset, the default password is 000000 (6 zeros), followed by the # sign.
- When you have a voice mail message, you will be notified one of two ways. For single line instruments you will receive a stuttered dial tone. The other indicator is a message wait (mwt) button, a constant light or a full diamond will appear next to this key.

DO NOT DISCUSS CLASSIFIED INFORMATION ON THE TELEPHONE.

General Information

The 56 Communications Squadron (CS) provides telecommunication service at Luke AFB and Gila Bend Air Force Auxiliary Field (AFAF). Receipt of incoming collect calls is NOT allowed at Luke AFB or Gila Bend AFAF.

1. CARE OF TELEPHONE EQUIPMENT

Under no circumstances will the subscriber move, alter, or make additions to the equipment. IAW AFI 33-111, only the telephone systems maintenance personnel are authorized to move or transfer telephone instruments from one physical location to another. Telephone users are responsible for the proper use, care, and safekeeping of telephone instruments and equipment and are liable for any loss or damage thereto. Submit move/transfer requests through your Unit Telephone Control Officer (TCO).

2. DIRECTORY LISTINGS

The Luke AFB Telephone Directory format is prescribed in AFI 33-111 attachment 6. Send all directory listings changes to 56cs.scxt@luke.af.mil.

3. REPORTING TELEPHONE MALFUNCTIONS

Report all telephone malfunctions to 56 CS Maintenance Operational Control at ext. 856-4400, providing the following details:

- Extension number and location/building number of telephone with issues.
- Brief description of trouble.
- User's name and contact number.

4. LUKE AFB DIALING INSTRUCTIONS

- From off-base to Luke AFB, dial (623) 856-XXXX.
- From on-base to on-base, dial 856-XXXX.
- From on-base to the local area, dial 99 + local area code + 7-digit number.
- From Luke AFB to Gila Bend AFAF, dial 856-XXXX.
- For DSN access, dial 94 + 7-digit number (stateside) or 10-digit number (overseas).
- For TOLL-FREE numbers, dial 99 + 1 + TOLL FREE number.
- For operator assistance, dial 0.

5. GILA BEND AFAF INSTRUCTIONS

- From Gila Bend AFAF to Luke AFB, dial 856-XXXX.
- From on-base to on-base, dial 856-XXXX.
- From Gila Bend AFAF to the Phoenix metro area, dial 99 + local area code + 7-digit number.
- From Gila Bend AFAF to the town of Gila Bend, dial 8 + 99 + 7-digit number.
- For DSN access, dial 94 + 7-digit number (stateside) or 10-digit number (overseas).
- For TOLL-FREE numbers, dial 99 + 1 + TOLL FREE number.
- For operator assistance, dial 8 + 00.

6. DSN COUNTRY CODES

Europe	314-XXX-XXXX
Alaska	317-XXX-XXXX
Canada	312-XXX-XXXX
Southwest Asia	318-XXX-XXXX
Pacific	315-XXX-XXXX

7. FEATURE DIALING INSTRUCTIONS

The following features may be utilized by depressing the cradle button and entering the feature code. Multi-line phone users may have these features assigned to a feature key.

- Conference Call. Parties who desire conference calls should contact the chief operator, ext. 856-6110 to initiate their requests.
- Call Hold. For single-line telephones, briefly depress the cradle button, wait for dial tone, then dial *79 and hang up phone. To return to the call, lift the handset and resume conversation. For multi-line telephones, activate the feature by depressing the hold button.
- Ring Again. If a call is placed and the line is busy, briefly depress the cradle button, dial *78 and hang up. The phone will ring back when the called party is free. To cancel this feature, dial #78. For multi-line telephones depress the ring again key and hang up; phone will ring back when the called party is free.
- Call Forward. To forward calls to another telephone, briefly depress the cradle button, wait for dial tone, dial *70, then dial the number you want calls forwarded to. To cancel this feature, dial #70. For multi-line phones select the primary extension, dial *70, then dial the number you want calls forwarded to. To cancel this feature, dial #70.
- Call Transfer. To transfer a call to another extension, while the caller is on the phone, briefly depress the cradle button, wait for dial tone, and then dial the extension number. Once the number begins to ring, depress the cradle button again, people can either hang up or stay on the line to announce the call, and then hang up. For multi-line telephones depress the Conf 3 button while the first party is on the line, dial the third party and depress Conf 3 again, all three parties will be on the line, hang up and your call transfer will be complete.

NOTE: Telephone users with the AT&T Merlin multi-line phones should depress the transfer button in place of the Conf 3 button. Those using the Norstar multi-line system should depress the link button in place of the Conf 3 button. Those using the Nortel or Meridian phones should use the Conf 3 button.

- Three-Way Calling. To establish a three-party conference call, dial the first party. When the party is on the line, briefly depress the cradle button, wait for the dial tone, and then dial the second party. When the second party answers, briefly depress the cradle button to connect all parties. For multi-line telephones depress the Conf 3 button while the first party is on the line, dial the third party and depress Conf 3 again, all three parties will be on the line.

- Call Pick-up. Call pick-up allows an end-user to answer incoming calls to another station within a predetermined call pickup group by dialing a Call Pickup access code * 74. If more than one call is waiting to be picked up in a group, the first call ringing is selected. One or more Call Pickup groups may be established within the system.

8. PLACING LONG DISTANCE CALLS

- Direct long distance dialing is authorized for OFFICIAL calls only. To place direct dial official long distance calls, you must have a Personal Identification Number (PIN). Contact your Unit Telephone Control Officer (TCO) to obtain a long distance PIN and guidance. To use a PIN dial *87 + PIN wait for a dial tone then dial 98 + 1 + area code + 7-digit number. Calls will be billed automatically to the extension the PIN is assigned against.
- Base users who don't have long distance PINS will obtain a Control Number from their Unit TCO, then dial 0 for the base operator and they will place the call for you. NOTE: The base operator will not assist you unless you have a Unit Control Number.
- Charging personal long distance calls to a base number or extension is strictly prohibited. Violators obligate government funds without authorization and will be held liable to disciplinary action under the provisions of the UCMJ (or federal laws in the case of civilians).
- Headquarters Air Education and Training Command spends in excess of half a million dollars each year in toll call charges. It is incumbent upon each individual making long distance calls to limit the length of such calls to the minimum time required to conduct required business and should not exceed five (5) minutes.

9. MAKING INFORMATION CALLS

There is a charge on information (directory assistance) calls within the state of Arizona. Consult your Phoenix Metropolitan Directory for numbers within the metropolitan Phoenix area. If the required number does not appear there, contact your Unit TCO to obtain a Control Number, then dial 0 and the base operator will connect you to the information operator.

10. REQUESTING TELEPHONE SERVICE

Installation, termination, and relocation of all telephone services will be submitted to 56 CS/SCX through your trained Unit TCO. Unit TCOs will utilize the online telecommunications management system to submit work order requests. An individual who thoroughly understands the request should be the point of contact.

11. PERSONAL CALLS ON GOVERNMENT PHONES

- Effective 21 June 1989, base telephones MAY be used for personal calls if: those calls do not adversely affect the performance of official duties by the caller or the caller's organization; are of reasonable duration and frequency; are local calls (i.e., do not incur long-distance or toll-call charges); and could not reasonably have been made at another time. Examples of such personal calls include speaking to a spouse/minor child or arranging for emergency repairs to a residence or automobile. Thus, base personnel may use government phones for personal calls, as long as they conform to guidelines listed above. This policy, however, does NOT extend to the DSN network.
- Pay telephone stations are an AAFES managed concession and are provided at strategic locations to accommodate additional personal telephone calls not covered by the above guidelines, such as long-distance calls. Problems encountered with pay phones should be addressed to local AAFES personnel, 623-935-1263.
- The Installation Commander allows the use of base telephones to place personal credit card calls. Most telephone companies provide credit card calling service that avoids the use of an on-base operator (i.e., AT&T, MCI, Sprint); these calls may be made by using touch-tone base phones, and do not incur a charge to the government.

12. CLASSIFICATION OF TELEPHONES

Government telephones are authorized for the transaction of official government business and require access to city toll trunks and Defense Switched Network (DSN) circuits for the proper conduct of such official business. This class of service (COS) is set up for your specific needs. For any changes, additions, or deletions to your COS, notify your Unit TCO. These changes must be submitted to 56 CS/SCX using the electronic telecommunications maintenance system.

13. REPORTING SERVICE COMPLAINTS

Telephone operators and maintenance technicians are instructed to be uniformly courteous and not to enter into controversy with customers. Reciprocal courtesies on the part of the telephone user will serve as an incentive for superior service for all parties. Complaints concerning service should be referred to 56th Communications Squadron Voice Network Systems Office, 856-7299 or email to: 56cs.sxxt@luke.af.mil.

14. SECURE VOICE TERMINALS (STU-III/STE)

STU-IIIs and STEs are available on Luke AFB. Contact your Unit's STU-III/STE Responsible Officer for training and usage instructions. A STU-III/STE directory is available by contacting 56 CS/SCBS (Wing Information Assurance Office) at 856-3560.

15. COMMUNICATIONS SECURITY

The fact that any number of people can listen to your conversation is a SECURITY weakness of the telephone system. Talking around, paraphrasing, code words or nicknames, and incomplete references on the telephone are attempts to disguise information. Any person monitoring your telephone conversation probably knows enough to "read through" your attempts to disguise information. All base telephone facilities are not secure and any classified information discussed over these facilities may be considered compromised. Military owned/leased telephone systems are subject to monitoring. An additional problem concerns the ever-increasing use of speaker or "hands-free" phones. Callers are not always aware that the recipient of their call is using a speaker or "hands-free" phone. Thus, other people in the area may inadvertently overhear conversations intended for private use. To avoid such problems, anyone using a phone in speaker or "hands-free" mode should IMMEDIATELY inform the party on the other end of this fact. This will allow parties desiring a private conversation to request that, and will avoid problems of unintentional eavesdropping by other people.

16. GENERAL DESCRIPTION OF DSN

The Defense Switched Network or DSN is the principal long-haul, voice communications network within the Defense Communications System providing unsecured, direct distance dialing service world-wide through a system of government owned and leased automatic switching facilities. The purpose of DSN is to handle essential command and control, operations, intelligence, logistic, diplomatic, and administrative traffic.

17. TELEPHONE PRECEDENCE SYSTEM

Military precedence designators are directed for joint use and specify the relative order in which telephone calls should be handled based on importance (content) of the call. The highest precedence authorized for Luke AFB is IMMEDIATE.

- FLASH – Reserved for alert warnings, or other emergency actions having immediate bearing on national, command or area security.
- IMMEDIATE – Reserved for vital communications which (1) have an immediate operational effect on tactical operations; (2) directly concern safety or rescue operations; (3) affect the intelligence community's operational role.
- PRIORITY – Reserved for calls requiring prompt completion for national defense and security, the successful conduct of war, or safeguarding of property, but not require higher precedence.
- ROUTINE – Reserved for all other official communications.

18. MINIMIZE

MINIMIZE is a condition imposed by commanders to control and reduce electrical communications to avoid delaying messages connected with an actual or simulated emergency. MINIMIZE is imposed by a commander at any level within their command or area of command responsibility. The imposition of MINIMIZE warns network users to eliminate nonessential traffic so communications directly concerned with the emergency or exercise will not be delayed. MINIMIZE may be imposed on voice and/or data systems. Notifications of MINIMIZE conditions will be disseminated through administrative channels.

19. OFF BASE RESIDENCE TELEPHONE SERVICE

Personnel living in base housing will contact the local commercial telephone company for new residential service or termination. For telephone troubles in base housing, contact your commercial service provider. If your commercial service provider determines the problem is interior wiring, contact the base housing office at 623-856-7643 for further guidance.

20. REPORTING BOMB THREATS OR "NUISANCE" CALLS

- It is unlawful for any person to make a telephone call during which obscene, lewd or immoral language is used with the intent to offend. Federal law further prohibits interstate telephone calls that are obscene, lewd, lascivious, filthy, or indecent, or where the intent, with or without actual conversation, is to annoy, abuse, threaten, or harass any person. It is unlawful to knowingly allow anyone to use a telephone under your control for the above purposes.
- Anyone who receives a threatening or malicious call should contact the Security Forces, at 856-5970.
- If you receive a bomb threat, do not hang up the telephone. Use another telephone to notify the Security Forces at 856-5970 and fill out the AF Form 440, Bomb Threat Aid. If possible danger to life or property is involved, alert everyone and vacate the area.
